A New Beginning

Paw Prints in a Different Direction.

Glen A. Wilson High is nineteen years old, yet there was always something new and exciting. Our school improved within the year, and the new things Wilson offered were always there for the benefit of the student body. Although it may have appeared to be the same, day in and day out, the student body, faculty and the school itself offered the community a new beginning for the better. Whether it was in sports, in clubs and organizations, or in academics, the students who set paw prints in a different direction really showed what Glen A. Wilson stood for.

The new beginning started at Wilson when we showed our overflowing spirit and pride. For the first time, the Associated Student Body claimed November 2, 1984 as "Nerd Day", and the response was tremendous. The school was invaded by nerds with horn rimmed glasses and sloppy clothes. More students participated and attended in all the activities then in past years. Since 1984 was an election years, certain students got politically involved and campaigned for the nominated presidents, President Reagan and former Vice President Mondale.

Sports involvement was never better. There was a great amount of participation all around Wilson, not only in sports, but also in clubs and organizations. We saw the Wildcat Marching Band unit meet at nights for practice. Every morning in second period when the teacher read the bulletin, we could see that every day had one or two clubs meeting after school.

We also started a new beginning and set paw prints in a different direction academically. We had six seniors commended by the National Merit Program. The six were Anwar Ghuloum, Audrey Flynn, Graig Vincent, Kim Sweson, Peter Kim and Richard Narramore. We also had some seniors who achieved high Scholastic Aptitude Test Scores at Wilson.

There was a great change in the faculty. We got thirteen new teachers and a new A.S.B. Director, Mr. Hank Jannace. Also, Mr. Bernier was promoted to take over Mr. Rieckewald's job as Assistant Principal in charge of discipline. Mr. Rieckewald became the new Assistant Principal.

A new honors course was added, Chemistry, a new P.E. grading system was introduced which was strict, and some teachers grading with the help of computers. Senior parking lots and senior lunch lines were once again established.

Overall, Glen A. Wilson improved. We saw many new things at school and Wilson was never seemed better. The students set paw prints in a different direction by setting new higher standards for themselves.

More Precious Than Gold

Valuable Friendships Found at Wilson

Dictionaries define a friend as being a person who knows and likes another, but the meaning of a friend goes beyond that. The friendships found at Wilson during the four years are more precious than gold. We have learned how to get along with one another and show affection and love. Friends are people who love you and accept you for what you are and not what they wish you to be. The four years at Wilson would have been worthless if we had not found valuable friends making everything more memorable and being there for us.

Upon entering Wilson as freshmen, we were from two different junior high schools, but time allowed everyone to become friends. As freshmen we were immature and found ourselves to be caught in a bind. We did not know who we really were, but our friends helped us discover our identities by letting us be ourselves. During the first year at high school we found groups of people closer to us — our peers and friends.

They proved themselves to be helpful and caring in more than one way. They played an important part in our lives. Friends helped each other mature even when they went around doing impulsive and crazy things. We had our guards up to protect the fear that no one would like the person who we were. We were afraid of that peers would reject us. But, once again the friends you found at Wilson helped you to keep that guard down and love and accept you for the unique person you are.

Friends were always there to help you when you were down or depressed, and also there when you are in your greatest mood, or were elated. No matter what, we counted on friends to be there. The fear of rejection was the biggest fear anyone had, and we tended to conform to the 'incrowd' just to fit in with the attitudes set by students.

The times spent together at Wilson are sure to be ones that will be remembered. The football games you went to, screaming and cheering the team on. The endless hours of talking on the phone about everything and nothing, and those times doing things together will be remembered forever because of the special people. Even if you lose contact with the dearest friend, the memories are sure to be precious and valuable as gold.

No matter what we did with our friends, they made life enjoyable and bearable through bad times. They also made bad times into better times.

An American Dream

A Night Sent From Heaven

Excitement, curiosity, and suspense filled the week of October 29, 1984-November 2, 1984. It was Homecoming week. "An American Dream" was the perfect theme for the 1984-1985 Homecoming. Chosen as Grand Marshalls were D.J's Ed Mann and Commander Chuck Street of 102.7 KIIS FM. The preparations started a week ahead with the nominations for King and Queen. By Homecoming week, one of six king nominees and six queen nominees were chosen to be King and Queen. Also the preparation of floats by the Freshmen Class of 1988, Sophomore Class of 1987, Junior Class of 1986, and Senior Class of 1985 floats were in order. Everyday of that week, students spent time on the floats.

The day of Homecoming was November 2, 1984. The traditional Homecoming rally was held, and Devin Aviles was chosen as Homecoming King. The other king nominees were Travis Akins, Troy Armstrong, Jeff Sterner, Doug Taylor and Mike Wanstreet. The Homecoming Queen was still kept a secret until the football game.

The evening started out with checking the minute details of the events that were to take place at 7:30 p.m. At District Stadium, the Wildcat Marching Band Unit led the parade around the track. The Grand Marshall, Homecoming Court, the floats, and last year's Queen Wynona Sukau and her escort, were patiently waiting for half-time. Finally, the four floats drove by with the winning float in front. The Senior float, designed by Bobby Okajima, won first place with the hard work of the Senior Class.

The football game began with a big lead against the Nogales Nobles. There was no challenge or contest in the game. From the beginning, the feeling of winning was in the air. The first half ended with Wilson leading by an unbelievable score of 48-14.

Finally, the cue for the crowning of the queen was given as the last seconds of the second quarter passed by. Who will be our next Homecoming Queen, and what was the big surprise from the sky going to be? Suspense mounted as the floats made one more appearance and the princesses made their rounds before coming to the red carpet before the platform. The princesses who were Kathy D'Andrea, Debbie Granger, Marci Cantu, Deanna Shaw, Monica Buonavita and Kristi Tayoya were introduced to the anxious crowd. After the introduction, the announcer informed the crowd to look at the sky for a big surprise. The band's percussion unit patiently drummed for the big surprise and after a while, there appeared a light in the sky. The light was a parachuter with the name of the 1984-1985 Homecoming Queen. Upon landing in the middle of the field, he appeared in a tuxedo with the name in an envelope. The lights dimmed and the name Monica Buonavita was read over the loud-speakers. After a brilliant display of fire works, Monica was crowned by Wynona. Kisses and hugs were given by the former Queen Wynona and the Court congratulated Monica as the new Queen.

As the lights were turned back on, red and yellow ballons were set free and the new Queen, escorted by her father, and the princesses and their escorts went back in the cars and made a final round of the track.

The third and fourth quarters were once again no trouble for the Wilson Football Team. The game was a spectacular as the first two quarters, and even the half-time activities. The last ten seconds of the clock were ticking by and the Wildcats knew it was an upset of a win. The final score of the defeat against Nogales was 55-14.

After the fabulous events of Homecoming at the District Stadium, a dance took place at 9:30 p.m. It was deejayed by the grand marshall, Ed Mann from KIIS FM, and it was one of the most successful dances ever held at Wilson. As the students danced overcome with elation, everyone agreed it was one of the most exciting and memorable nights of Wilson.

This fantastic night was a success because of Traci Tsujimura's long hours of planning and A.S.B. Also with the help of Key Club, and the Wildcat Marching Band Unit, the night was a big success.

Welcome Aboard!

Newcomers to Wilson High School

Little changes have been made during the last nineteen years, but the biggest change came this year with the tewlve new faculty members to Wilson High School. Two were new teachers, and ten previously taught in California. The new faculty members were: Cami Brunsdon, Laura DeLadurantey, Karen Jones, Rosa Lizardi, Dot Lowry, Carol Tebbs, Toni Fosnes, Bob Gomez, Harry Gunther, Debbie Montpus, Jackie Unitt, and Hank Jannace. The twelve new faculty members are very interesting people and the Prowler would like to introduce them to Wilson with their hobbies, the subject they teach, and what they previously did before.

The new faculty members in the ESL Department were Cami Brunsdon, Laura DeLurantey, Karen Jones, and Roas Lizardi.

Besides teaching, Mrs. Brunsdon enjoys swimming and reading. In her spare time, Ms. DeLarantey, enjoys gardening and softball. Ms. Jones taught adult school ESL previously and she is currently studying Chinese. Ms. Lizardi has been teaching in the Hacienda — La Puente District for ten years. When she is not teaching, Ms. Lizardi enjoys traveling with her family to Guadalajara, Mexico.

In the English Department, the new members were: Dot Lowry, Carol Tebbs, and Jackie Unitt.

Before joining the Wilson Staff, Mrs. Lowry taught at Cederlane and Mesa Robles for the last seven years, and she is in charge of the Wilson Rally Squad. Mrs. Tebbs taught at Cedarlane for the last twenty-one years. She is the co-advisor for the Key Club on campus. Mrs. Unitt has previous Wilson expierence, and we are glad to have her back.

Toni Fosnes is in the Social Science Department and her hobbies are traveling, reading, and camping. She has traveled to Europe and lived in Saudi Arabia before. Bob Gomez is a new math teacher. He enjoys photography and his other interest is microcomputers. Harry Gunther taught at Hamilton High School in Los Angeles before coming to Wilson. Mr. Gunther is a new science teacher. When he is not teaching, he enjoys the outdoors. His hobbies are volleyball, tennis, skiing, backpacking, and bicycling.

The new choir teacher is Debbie Montpas. She taught at John North High School in Redlands. Mrs. Montpas enjoys dancing and singing and she loves to participate in musical theaters.

Last, but not least, is Hank Jannace, Wilson's new ASB Director. Mr. Jannance came to Wilson from La Puente High School where he worked for twelve years. His hobbies are water skiing and all kinds of athletics.

Necessities at Wilson

Spirit and Pride

Spirit and pride are what Wilson is made of. To be a proud Wildcat, one must be filled with spirit and pride. Everywhere one looked, there was a sign of spirit for the school and pride in the Wildcat. Spirit and Pride were not only shown at football games and rallies, but also in classrooms, on special days, like Halloween and nerd day, and through special activities planned by A.S.B. and through sports and clubs

One way pride was shown in classrooms was through academic achievement. Students were proud to do well, and the eager to do well, showing pride for the school so Wilson would stand out academically. Also spirit was shown by getting involved in after-school activities. There were more than twenty organizations and clubs on the Wilson campus. Many students became so involved, they had to choose which club meetings to attend because of conflicts of the meeting times, and which clubs to join.

Sports was another good way to show spirit and pride. Every time a team won a game, it showed the spirit of the teammates and their pride in representing the school's name and mascot.

Special days were set by A.S.B. to promote spirit and pride. The egg toss, which is an annual event, always promoted spirit. The students interacted with some students they did not know, but this interaction brought the spirit and caused unity.

Halloween was another day when everyone dressed up in a costume and promoted the spirit of Halloween. A.S.B. tried something new and claimed November 2, 1984 as "Nerd Day." This day got the most overwhelming response. When students dressed slovenly, with thick-rimmed, broken glasses and pen collections in their shirt pockets.

No school can survive without spirit and pride. Wilson was definitely not a place like that. The spirited and rowdy student body knew the meaning of the words "spirit" and "pride."

What are Seniors Made of?

Unsurpassable Human Beings

What are Seniors? They are the strange species who go through three years of high school as low and humble undergrads, but finally, in the fourth year, turn into super human beings. As soon as they enter the first day of school in September, Seniors are the ones on campus who knew what was going on and who were the most active in sports, academics, clubs and organizations. The seniors were among the best leaders and the Senior Class of 1985 was no exception.

Seniors dominated the sports scene. They were captains and leaders of the most sports and usually put forth the winning effort for the school and themselves. If one checks the list of presidents of clubs and organizations, the seniors took command and led most of the clubs to the top. Pauline Jones, A.S.B. president, did a great job of reinstating the lunch line and parking lot.

Academically there were more seniors involved in getting better grades and achieving great tasks. The Academic Decathalon, for example, has all seniors members except for one junior. The seniors, John Kim, Anwar Ghuloum and Audrey Flynn, prepared long hours for the competition.

Finally, seniors' voices were always heard above the rest. During rallies, they could always be heard when singing the alma mater, or they yelled especially loud when the Rally Squad puts on a class competition.

C.I.F. Champs

A Winning Moment!

For the last four years, Glen A. Wilson's water polo team dominated the Sierra League, yet they had not reached the goal that had eluded Coach Scott Massey and his men. That goal was winning the 3-A C.I.F. Championship. The Water Polo team made this goal a reality by beating El Dorado in a thrilling 9-8 overtime victory.

After eight months of self-motivation and preparation by the players, they came into the first round of C.I.F. with a 7-0 league record and winning the Sierra League Championship. Their first round opponent was Mira Costa. Getting off to a fast start, Wilson easily beat Mira Costa 15-5. "Each player contributed to this first important victory!" commented Coach Massey. The second C.I.F. round was against San Marcos. This time Darin Blizzard led the team with 6 goals and was both the offensive and defensive star in this 12-4 victory.

Winning the third round, the water polo team had reached the semifinals. In each game, Coach Massey had faith and belief in his men. "I was confident that my men would win the first three C.I.F. rounds," reminisced Coach Massey. In the semifinal game against Riverside Poly, Massey was a bit apprehensive; their opponent was the defending C.I.F. Champs. Earlier in the season, the team beat Riverside Poly 10-8, but this time the score was one sided favoring the Wildcats! To Massey's relief, he exclaimed, "This was the BEST game that any Wilson Water Polo players played in the history of the school!" Chuck Leatherman, Mike Bejarano, and Greg Salvinski led the team with a 10-3 overpowering victory.

Proud that his men had reached the finals of the C.I.F. tournament, Massey believed that he did all he could to coach his men and left it up to the team to play the best that they could. Joel Francisco led the team with 4 goals and beat El Dorado 9-8.

There were many honors bestowed on the players. Greg Salvinski became the first athlete from Wilson to be named C.I.F. Player of the Year. Salvinski was chosen for his all-around ability as a water polo player. Mike Bejarano and Darin Blizzard were named first team C.I.F.; second team — Joel Francisco; third team — Chuck Leatherman and Robby Brooke was named with an Honorable Mention. All of the fine athletes were named first team All Sierra League. The Wilson's Most Valuable Players were Greg Salvinski, Mike Bejarano, and Darin Blizzard.

The players were not only given awards, but Coach Scott Massey was named C.I.F. Coach of the Year. Coach Massey believed that he received this award because the award reflected how well his team did and his ability to coach them. Coach Massey smiling said, "My happiness does come from winning the C.I.F. Championship and the award but it also comes from my players." He was happy to see that his men were able to reach their goals and experience the thrill of victory.

After winning two C.I.F. Swimming Championships and a Water Polo Championship, all Coach Massey wanted to do was build a "Water Polo and Swimming Dynasty" at Wilson High and let the people in Southern California know that Glen A. Wilson is a school of Champions.

Wilson Wildcats

Walking in Washington, D.C.

President Ronald Reagan's Inaugural Parade was the hottest topic to hit Wilson and Southern California. The Wilson Wildcat Marching Band Unit and the Tall Flags received a once in-a-lifetime chance to participate in something as special as the Inaugural Parade. Based on the band's many successes in competition which came from hard work, dedication and pride, the band was chosen to represent California at the Presidential Inaugural Parade.

Mr. Adams, presented with the invitation on December 18, 1984, readily accepted the chance to participate. Fundraising and media coverage began immediately. All the television stations in Southern California gave the band a piece of prime news time. On KCBS, KNBC, KABC, KTTV, KTLA, and many other stations, one was able to see a band member commenting on the great event. National recognition was also given through A.B.C. The band sold toothbrushes, sausages and cheese, chocolate bars, and coupon books to lessen the cost so all 150 members could attend.

Every night and every day, the band practiced their heart out so they would be in top form. They got a chance to practice marching on Wedgeworth to the Puente Hills Mall. This was just the beginning of the exciting adventure.

On the morning of January 17, 1985, the band left for Washington, D.C. Upon their arrival, snow and sub-zero temperature awaited. "All the kids loved it!" commented an enthused Anwar Ghuloum. "We had snow fights and when we practiced most of our instruments froze," continued Anwar. January 19-20 were touring days for the band. A very proud Mr. Gil Adams, the director of the band, stated, "This trip was very educational: an educational field trip. This was so because the kids got to see where American History happened and patriotism was overflowing." The three days of touring started with a visit to the White House. They also visited famous landmarks such as: The F.B.I. Building, The Supreme Court, Lincoln Memorial Center, The National Archives, The Smithsonian Museums, Ford's Theatre, Embassy Row, Georgetown University, and numerous other interesting places. When the band visited the Capitol Building, Congressman David Dreir hosted a hot chocolate reception party for the marching band unit.

Everything was well, but the weather got worse. The Inaugural Parade Committee decided to cancel the parade for the welfare of everyone. Mr. Adams retrospected, "They were very upset and many cried." But the bad conditions gave the band more recognition. On January 20, 1985 at 11:30 P.M. Mr. Adams was notified that they will be one of five bands to perform for the President at the Capitol Center.

January 21 was the day. The three national television companies broadcasted the famous event. The trip was well worth the effort and trouble because the honor bestowed upon the band. Also, the band sat so close to the platform on which President Reagan stood on. Mr. Adams excitedly commented, "We could see Mr. Reagan and hear him without a microphone because we were so close."

On January 22, 1985 the world-renown Wilson Wildcat Marching Band and flags returned to the Heights welcomed by the Drill Team. Band president David Shebby summarized the trip in a couple of sentences, "It was a good experience. The historical tours and the address given by the president was well worth it. The news was disappointing and most people cried but it was an honor just to be there. The coldness was dissappointing but it was a memorable and exciting experience!"

A Night on the Catalina Holiday

Valentine's Formal

The night of February 16, 1985 was an exciting night for the students at Wilson. It was the night of the Valentine's Formal on board the Catalina Holiday. The Valentine's Formal was special and unique because it was on board a ship.

The Catalina Holiday left the harbor at 9:00 P.M. and returned to shore at 12:30. The dance floor was crowded because of the unexpected amount of couples attending this exciting function. The bids were sold at $35.00 per couple and only fifty couples were expected to go. That was not so. 113 bids were sold or 226 were on the Catalina Holiday enjoying themselves.

The Catalina Holiday left the harbor of Newport Beach at 9:00 P.M. On the ship the couples spent the lovely evening dancing away the night with the music deejayed by the Magestic Mixer. "The ship was a little too crowded, but I had a lot of fun," commented Lisa Kim, a junior. Requests were played by Randy Llamas the deejay for the Magestic Mixer and the time quickly passed away. At 12:30 Catalina Holiday docked at the harbor once more and all couples who attended the formal left tired but having felt that they had fun.

All the planning and hard work was done by A.S.B., but mostly by the sophomore senators. Over all, the Valentine's Formal was a great success because of the high attendance rate and the fun everyone had.

Cats Tackle the Season

Football season began with the toughest pre-season schedule in the San Gabriel Valley. Four of the five pre-league contests were against CIF semi-finalists or finalists. But the highly ranked Wildcats were unimpressed by their foes as they rolled to a 4-0 mark; averaging 30 points a game. The stage was set for the showdown of the year between the Cats and the undefeated Bishop Amat Lancers, finalist in the 4-A division, in CIF, the previous year. In what was called the most exciting high school football game in recent history, the teams were deadlocked in a 37-37 tie, and Wilson ended their pre-season with a 4-0-1 record.

After the highly emotional game against Bishop Amat, the Cats were never quite the same, struggling during the league games. The Cats finished with a 6-3-1 record. Several players received honors for their outstanding performances. On defense, the Cats were aided by Linemen George Mendez and Keith Pawlowski, Defensive backs Gary Bowan and Mike Wanstreet, and Linebackers Steve Lopez, Randy Unrein, and Anthony Mendoza. At the heart of the defense were all-leaguers Mike Haskins, Terry Needham, David Bond, Ted Carrier, Danny Akins, and sophomore standout Phil Russell. The Cats' high-powered offense enjoyed a good year as well. Seniors Eric Niguidula, Travis Akins, Mike Wanstreet, and League MVP Devin Aviles rotated at the running back positons, and all-league selections Dan Trinkle teamed with the league's leading receiver Mike Wanstreet through the air. The solid offensive line had their share of all league players; team captains Mike Pulice and Mike Haskins as well as Terry Needham and Pat Murphy each received high accolades. Kicker of the year Gary Bowan rounded out the variety of awards and recognition given to Wilson standouts.

Soph-Frosh — Learn the Ropes

The teaching that the teams received served as a base for the Varsity teams of the future.

The lack of lower division football teams was distressful to the coaches; thus, it affected their overall records. In the case of the Frosh season, this was most evident. Each and every player worked hard and contributed to the team's successes.

The Frosh team finished 5-4. The competition in the non-league season was not good, according to Coach Frederico, but the league competition was excellent. The team lost three very close league games to Nogales, Rowland, and Los Altos; all of which were within a touchdown.

Chung Ro (Running Back-Linebacker) was the team's Most Valuable Player. Other valuable players included Robert Compton (QB-Offense), Chun Kim (Best Defensive Player), and John Acala (Coaches' Award).

The Sophomore football season was one that could be best described as satisfactory. Coach Wingett expected the team to go and the team did, but what Coach Wingett did not expect was the hard work and excellent play contributed by each player.

In a pre-season that had the team u against JV teams, the Soph team stack ed up 4 victories and 1 loss. Up agains the stiff competition of Sierra League Soph football teams, the Wilson Sop team went one and four. The overa five wins and five losses did not impres people as much as the outstanding pe formances of individual players such a Anthony Delsi, Mike Smith, Mike Sta ings, Don Barker, Vic Geanakos, And Relton, Fidel Collins, and Richar Salcido.

Wilson Volleyball Victorious

The 1984 victorious Varsity Lady Wildcats proved their capabilities! The hard working team coached by Laura Lampys consisted of six seniors and four juniors. The fact that six of the ten members were returning players were a major factor in contributing to the great success of the team.

The pre-season turned out to be less of a challenge than expected. There was not a team in the Valley that challenged the Lady Wildcats to their fullest potential. The Cats finished their season with a 9-0 record. In addition to this, they took first place at the Chino Tournament.

After long hours of hard work, the Lady Cats proved to be the toughest contenders in the Sierra League. They completed the Sierra League by winning the championship and remaining the only undefeated team. As they entered CIF competition, their overall record was 18-0.

To make this team work, it took unique qualities such as, enthusiasm, drive, dedication, and most of all . . . determination. These attitudes were fostered by the encouragement of Coach Lampys. This "Lady Cat" put in much time, effort, and hard work to make this team #1.

At the awards presentation, Michelle Richard and Janna Olson were named Co-Most Valuable Players. Darcy Neuberger received the Coach's Award while Dyan Hadley was the recipient of the Most Improved Award. Michelle Richard, Janna Olson, Darcy Neuberger, and Patty Bautista were named to the 1st Team All League.

J.V.-Frosh/Soph - Impressive Seasons

Both the 1984 Junior Varsity and the Frosh-Soph Volleyball teams had a slow start in the beginning of the season. When the season ended, the Junior Varsity Volleyball team swept the Sierra League by winning the championship with a 10-0 record. The Frosh-Soph Volleyball team ended the season with an overall record of 6-4 and tied for second in the Sierra League.

After losing the opening game of the year, the JV team won the next sixteen games in a row. Leading the comeback were captains Kelly Kratochvil and Jean Song.

Like the JV team, The Frosh-Soph started the season with a 2-3 record. Slowly the Frosh-Soph team began to click; the team had excellent setters such as Gina Carreon, Genny LaPonsey, and Toni Sitton and they equally had great hitters like JoAnna Vargas, Amelia Perez, and Ebonie Searcy.

At the awards presentation — the JV awards were given to Suely Chesn for Most Valuable Player. Jean Song was the recipient of the Coach's Award while Kim Kostyk received the Most Improved Player award. The Frosh-Soph awards went to Genny LaPonsey for the Most Valubale Player, Eileena Icamen received the Coach's Award, and Irena Nakamura was named the Most Improved.

C.I.F. Champs

Wilson Varsity Water Polo team ended the regular season 18-3 and the Sierra League Champions for the fourth year in a row with a 7-0 record. The team finished the season ranked first in the final CIF top ten poll and was the 1984 CIF 3-A Water Polo Champions.

Wilson's attack was led by super seniors Greg Salvinski, Mike Bejarano, and Chuck Letherman. Joining the scoring attack of the Cats were fabulous Juniors Darin Blizzard and Joel Francisco The Wilson defense was anchored by two outstanding senior goalies Robby Brooke and Pat Metoyer. Other defensive stars were seniors John Kim and David Meyer along with juniors Dean Hale and Rodney Koeneke. Highlights of the 'Cats regular season were victories over cross town rival Los Altos (19 4) and efending 3-A CIF Champio Riverside Poly (10-8).

The CIF championship was wo through hustle, execution, composur and a great deal of teamwork. Lon hours of intense coaching by Sco Massey and his supurb players mad the 1984 Varsity Water Polo team C Champions.

Sierra League Champions

Junior Varsity Water Polo was the 1984 Sierra League Champions for the fourth straight year. They won with determination and hustle and the coaching of Scott Massey. The Wilson Frosh-Soph Water Polo team was equally impressive. They won the 1984 Sierra League Champions for the seventh year in a row with a league record of 7-0 and the fine coaching of Jon Sterkel.

The standouts of the Wilson JV Water Polo team were Seniors Jim Hoppe, Dan Orsbern, Steve Kostyk, Jim Nevarov, Shane Lott, David Shelton, and Robert Hitchcock. Junior leaders were Robby Martin, Henry Chen, and Julie Skonard. Many of these Wildcat stars lettered Varsity and helped the team in the CIF playoffs and the championship. The high point of the season was a 6-5 victory over cross town rival Los Altos.

Leading the Cat attack for the Wilson Frosh-Soph team were tenth graders Paul Caerbert, Steven Ferral, Jerry Hitchcock, Mike Bryan, Wayne Hagstrom, and Ara Melkonians. Freshmen standouts were John Kunishma, James Traylor, David Tafoya, Mike Banuelos, Brian Miller, Brian Nelson, and Mike Egan. The Wildcat goalie, Kurt Robles, was a defensive standout and began the Wilson counterattack with super outlet passes.

Girls' Tennis — Learning and Winning

Girls' Varsity Tennis had a learning experience; only three players were returning from last year's team; thus the Varsity Team had a very young team. Although they ended the season 3-6-1, to this young team it was a good season.

In the beginning of the year, Seniors Abby Fadden and Susan Keen were important factors. With their experience, they helped stabilize the team. As the season progressed, the singles' players improved and turned in strong performances. Julie Kidwell, Sara Allison, and Yasuko Okada provided the strength in the singles' team. The excellent doubles team that supported the Varsity Team at the right moments were Kim Thomas and Stephanie Coons.

The tennis awards were given to Kim Thomas for Most Valuable Player and Stephanie Coons was the recipient for the Most Improved Award.

The Girls' Junior Varsity Tennis Team had an excellent season, tying for first place with Los Altos and Nogales; and winning the Sierra League Championships.

Like the Varsity Team, this was the first time for many of the girls to play on the tennis team. In the beginning of the year, the pre-season ended with a 2-2 record, but the season had just begun for Coach Cavezza's girls. As the season progressed, the JV's were winning and becoming more confident as each new match came. At the end of the season awards were handed out. Ikuku Onae was named Most Valuable Player while Catherine Rowe received The Most Improved honors.

and I'll always love you wherever you are. Don't forget me. OK? Have a good summer every year. Bye Dude. Love & friendship, Mindy (mink)

Tough Cats — Tough Season

The Wildcat Varsity Cross-Country team tuned up for the Sierra League with wins over Workman and Schurr High School and close losses to El Monte and South Hills High Schools. The Junior Varsity team won three of four losing only to El Monte. The Frosh-Soph team remained undefeated.

Sierra League competition was closed at the Varsity level with all but West Covina in contention for a CIF berth. Unfortunately for the Wildcats, they fell short in close races with Los Altos and Walnut. Nogales beat the Cats with some help with the PSAT test that took away most of the Juniors. Rowland was the only team that had the grouping to really defeat Wilson's Varsity Cross-Country team.

David Amparan and Al Quinonez shared the number one spot. Gene Fortenberry and Alex Delgado were not far behind. Don Wakefield was a reliable number five with David Shebby and Art Mendoza usually providing a reliable backup.

The Junior Varsity Cross-Country team lost an early season contest to El Monte and then went on to finish the season undefeated except for a mix up at Nogales that was rectified in the Sierra League meet. At that time, David Shebby, Todd Nielsen, Art Mendoza, Richard Chan, Joe Tucker, and James Kellogg took six of the top ten spots for the Sierra League Championship.

The Frosh-Soph Cross-Country team was the undisputed leader of the Sierra League, winning all of its contests for a perfect season. Sam Chacon won four of five races in this division and moved up to Varsity for the League meet. Number two runner, Dave Reichling also moved up from the Frosh-Soph team to aid the Varsity in its quest for a CIF berth. This valiant move on the part of these outstanding performers proved the undoing of the Varsity team, as without them they sank to fourth place in the Sierra League meet, thereby falling from an undisputed first to second place in the league standings.

Wildkittens to C.I.F.

Fifteen girls competed on the cross-country in the three mile races this 1984 season. 1983 was the first year that the Wildkittens could field a team of five in every meet. 1984 found not only a team of at least seven in every meet but enough for a Junior Varsity team. The JV won their only race of the season against powerhouse South Hills. The remaining schools could not field a team.

Against Workman, the kittens put ahead of the first Lobo. The Schurr girls who wiped out the Wildkittens last year could only place one in the top five and they were in fourth place.

It wasn't all that easy against Walnut and Nogales who won a heartbreaking one point victory against the Wildkittens. The Kittens settled for third in the Sierra League and advanced to the CIF prelims where they beat the San Gabriel Valley League's number one team along with Whitmont's number two teams and Baseline's number three teams. Freshman Darlene Flores, Michelle Esparza, and Vanessa Maldonado, with Sophomores Becky Lopez and Maria Wong took 2nd place in the Craig Park Invitational against some of Orange County's finest teams. Flores won that race, as she did in the San Gabriel Valley Invitational and all of her duel meets. Gissela Pezo and Gilda Ochoa were the number four and five runners ahead of Becky Lopez and Maria Wong. The Sierra League was tougher this year because the Wilson Wildkittens were part of the reason.

Bright Future For Young Undefeated Team

The 1984-85 season was a very successful campaign for the Varsity Cagers. Led by first team all-eaguers Scott Williams, David Dagam-at, and Scott Richardson the Wildcats ashioned the first undisputed league hampionship in the school's history. heir 10-0 record was also the first time he Wildcats have ever gone unbeaten n league play. The Wildcats set school ecords for the most points scored and he fewest allowed during league play. hey outscored their opponents by over wenty points per contest. The highlights f league play were two victories over ighly touted Nogales.

6'8" junior center Scott Williams was oted Most Valuable Player of the erra League. His fine all-around play lso earned him All-Tourney honors in the Brea and Glendora Tournaments. Lightning quick guard Scott Richardson also earned All-Tournament honors in both of these Tournaments. David Dagampat, who along with Richardson were team Co-captains was selected the outstanding Defensive player in the Glendora Tournament. Dagampat's outstanding defense and passing were instumental in the Cat's success.

The team's overall Record was 21-5. This included a record thirteen straight victories. The Wildcats entered the CIF playoffs with high hopes. They were ranked first in the San Gabriel Valley and second in the CIF. After an exciting first round victory over Garden Grove the Wildcats were upset in the second by the Spartans of Damien 56-55. A very questionable call with 3 seconds left in the game stiffled the dream of a C.I.F. Championship.

In the words of Coach Mike Lowe, "We had a very intelligent, hard working group of kids. The team achieved more than anybody expected."

The future looks bright for the Cats. They have eight lettermen returning next year. The Wildcats only had four seniors. Along with Richardson and Dagampat seniors Ted Carrier and Marcel Ceballos showed great spirit and leadership throughout the season.

Lower Division Talent Showcased

The Boys' Basketball program at Wilson overflowed with talent. Where the Varsity team could not accommodate this talent, it spilled over into the lower divisions. Every team Frosh, Soph, and J.V. had a spectacular season. Many schools do not have this talent; Wilson accomplished it on four.

The Frosh team finished with an overall record of 14-9. They were 6-4 in league contests. The team took second place in the Santa Ana Valley Christmas Tournament and won the consolation trophy at the Don Lugo Holiday Classic.

Coach Frank McCarroll's team experienced many ups and downs during the year, as they lost six games by eight points or less. The closeness and competitiveness of this type should help to develop the players for their future seasons. The team was led by the outstanding play of point guard Victor Kubo, Forwards Robert Compton, David Buck, and Adrian Yee, center Chung Ro, and guards Mark Tsujimura, Lance Stevens, and Jerry Garay.

The freshman squad created a lot of new and exciting aspects of playing basketball the "Wilson Way." This should help to insure the success of higher levels of play in the future.

Amidst numerous changes in coaching and personnel, the Sophomore squad finished a disappointing in 4-6 in league, despite the great play of the team. If a few bounces and calls had gone their way, the team could have finished 7-3 and contending for the league title.

The scoring chores were left up to center Paul Whang, forward John Hamel, and guards Bob Andersen and Brian Williams. Forward Alric Oishi handled the tough defensive assignments as the team received good support from Mike Rubio, Peter Yang, Justin Dang, Todd Harmonson, David Sha, and Sung Ok.

Despite the setbacks they faced, lessons were learned as to how to be a Wilson High School athlete.

The J.V. team had a good overall record, but their league record was not up to their expectation. While the team ended league play with an even record (18-8), they were disappointed by the frustration of losing a couple of close games.

The team was led by John Miner, Darrin Blizzard, Anthony Delsi, and Chris Murray. Any one of these players could have played on the varsity team, but there was not enough room to accommodate these players.

The average season which this squad encountered was attributed to the fact that the team may not have worked hard enough play up to their potential.

Lady Cats Do It Again

The Girls' Varsity Basketball team has been such a consistent winner in the past seasons that they are expected to have a winning season automatically. Every season the team lives up to these expectations.

The Lady Cats had an overall record of 19-7-0. They came in fourth place in the Lady Cat Classic and won the consolation championship of the La Puente Christmas tournament.

The team was 9-1-0 in league play and, for the fourth straight year the Lady Cats were co-champs with Walnut. One of the highlights of league play was holding Los Altos to two points in the second half of an away game at Los Altos. The explosive energy of the team was demonstrated during the second half of a game against Rowland. down by two points at halftime, the team came out in the third quarter with a twenty-four to six blitz to take control of the game.

Individually this was an outstanding year for Michelle Richard. Michelle was selected all-tournament at Wilson and La Puente tournaments. In addition to being selected the team MVP and All-Sierra League, Michelle was voted Player of the Year in Sierra League. Allison Kuruma made first team while Anna Getherall and Stephanie Coons were selected to the second team all-league. Jeanne Threatt was the only other senior on the team. Strong contributions were made by Lisa Bogard, Darcy Neuberger, Dorine Soriano, and Traci Tsujimura all made strong contributions to championship team.

Varsity Hopefuls Stress Fundamentals

The girls' basketball program at Wilson has been one of the best in the San Gabriel Valley. The consistent winning tradition is not only a result of the coaching and competitiveness of the varsity level, but it should be partly attributed to the success of the lower division teams. Success in this case is defined in terms of how much is learned in the lower divisions. The experience that one gains in a lower division team is important to the future of the varsity team. Both coaches stressed this with their teams.

The J.V. Team's greatest assets were its quickness and experience. Starters Kim Kostyk, Lisa Banbury, Delinda Eschrich, Paula Damron, and Denise Schwab led the team to its undefeated record of ten wins and no losses. Coach Wingett commented that these were "great players to work with." In fact, many of the players are returning J.V. players. Team effort and hard work made all these assests work together.

The Frosh/Soph team improved as the season progressed. Being a young team (ten freshmen, four sophomores), Coach Smith tried to stress the team concept and fundamentals. The season was a success because, according to Coach Smith, the team will be returning for the most part.

Although the team concept was stressed, some players did stand out. A leading scorer was Toni Sitton, to whom Coach Smith attributes some of the team's success.

A Few Go a Long Way

Participation is essential to the success of any sport. The Wildcat Wrestling Team were not fortunate to have that type of participation. The team did have its share of good wrestlers, but not enough depth.

The reasons for this lack of participation were numerous. Wrestling is a very disciplined sport in which a participant must keep his weight down constantly. This kind of discipline scared off many potential wrestlers according to Coach Fair.

Fifty people started in wrestling at the beginning of the season. Twenty-one participants were involved by the end of the season. Eight of last year's lettermen in wrestling did not return. The team finished league matches with a 2-3 record.

Some of the talent of the team included Tom Noone, (Sierra League Champ), John Geanakos (Second Place Sierra League, Fifth Place CIF), and Abraham Rivera (Second Place Sierra League), all of whom went to the CIF Finals. John has qualified to attend the State Finals in Stockton.

The individual record of the wrestling team was better than the team record. If participation increases both records could improve.

A Record Breaking Soccer Season

With all the great players it was hard to imagine that the Varsity Boys' Soccer team could have had anything but a perfect season. The team didn't come close to a perfect record although this was one of the most talented teams in years. The record (5-4-1) didn't reflect this team's hard and excellent play through the year.

CIF being in their future, the team came through when it counted because of the record breaking play of the players. CIF's second leading all-time scorer Mike Purcey led the team offensively along with all-leaguer Troy Armstrong (The second leading scorer on the team). Doug Taylor and Mark Olivarez anchored the defense (both were all-league selections). In the goal was Pat Casado, a three year starter and first team all-leaguer who led CIF in blocked shots.

Soccer is a sport in which the record does not indicate the talent of the team. The ability to win when a win was needed was the greatest asset to the team. Wilson proved this in an exciting CIF playoff victory against the number one contender Riverside (North) 2-1.

A Fresh Start, an Old Tradition

In November of 1984, the Board of Education passed a resolution granting Wilson a girls' soccer team. The decision was a result of a strong push by the parents of some of the girls interested. The Booster Club made girls' soccer possible through its offer to pay for uniforms, transportation costs, and the officials. In three months the funds that were needed were raised by the parents in the club.

The decision came so late, however, that the girls did not have much time to practice. The immediate goal of Coach Hollander was to establish a bonding together of the players. This was the first time that most of the players had played together (and for some it was also the first time the girls had played at all.)

Although the teams record was poor (0-8-2), it was not indicative of the effort that the team put in. Julie Kidwell, Kris Vincent, Stacy Marty, Dawn Hale, and Andrea Risen were all contributors to the effort that showed in the team's play each week. Mrs. Cathy Zumwalde also helped Coach Hollander in the drilling and coaching of the team.

The Frosh/Soph Boys' Soccer team had the talent to end the season with a 8-0-2 record this year. As the season developed, the players improved drastically.

Tenacity was the word Coach Foster used to describe the team. With the help of Brian Forrest, Tom Hoppe, Rick Bierman, Paul Skalsky, and Mark Saavedra this was proven to be true.

V. Baseball — A New Look

The Varsity Squad had a new look as Steve Martin took over as head coach. Mr. Martin, a former coach at Workman, was optimistic and vowed to make Wilson baseball a major Sierra League contender.

A returning experience infield of Jeff Sterner, Brian Chavez, Steve Jung, and Mark Moding were capable of providing the defense essential to a winning team. The strong pitching staff of Dan Trinkle, Steve Lopez, Felipe Aguirre, Randy Unrein, and Sean Young teamed with catcher Fernando Solis formed the Cat's battery. And the Cat's veteran hitters combined with the aid of talented underclassmen provided a formidable obstacle to opposing pitchers and help to make the Wildcats a respected member of the tough Sierra league competition.

Baseball — Unified Teams

Overcoming fundamental mistakes the Junior Varsity Baseball Team had great season. Slowly they gel together to work as a team. Coached by Lee Fair and Bob Anderson, these coaches and their players had one goal to be in first place, but they faced heavy competition from Los Altos High School and Nogales High School.

Offensively the team was led by Don Barker and John Hamel. The Junior Varsity Team had a solid infield made up of Don Barker, 1st base, Mike Ono, 2nd base, Bob Cusey, 3rd base, and Bob Anderson, shortstop, as well as a strong outfield with Jerry Hinds, rightfield, John Hamel, centerfield, and Sean Carrido, leftfield. The team had an outstanding pitching staff comprised of Robert Armitage, Jeff Fowler, Matt Lopez, Bob Anderson and Sean Carrido.

Like the Junior Varsity Team, the Frosh Baseball Team had a good season once they overcame their mental and fundamental mistakes. Coached by Chuck Coulter and assisted by Scott Widner, these coaches wanted each of their players to be comfortable about playing high school baseball since there were never any returning players.

Since these players were playing together for the first time, they became a unified team rooting for one another. Everyone had the competitive spirit and drive.

Leading the team with his hitting ability was Young Kim and defensively, Paul Meza led the team. With Anthony Grinsby's pitching, all fourteen players contributed in their own way.

Softball — A Competitive Season

Coached by Fred Long, the Girls' Varsity Softball Team had eleven returning and experienced players leading the team to an outstanding season and possibly to their first Sierra League Championship.

Kathy Barchick, Patty Bautista, Anna Getherall, Lisa Bogard, and Chris Tramonto led the Softball Team with numerous victories in addition to excellent newcomers joining the team such as Stephanie Coons, Julie Kidwell, Kristi Vincent, Kim Kostyk.

Offensively Kathy Barchick, Patty Bautista, and Anna Getherall provided the winning runs while defensively Ann Getherall, Kathy Barchick, Patty Bautista, and Lisa Bogard made the great plays. As in the past, Patty Bautista provided the strong pitching needed to win the games.

Though Rowland High School and Walnut High School were the team's main competition, the Girls' Varsity Softball Team was ready to handle anything.

The Junir Varsity Team had a new coach, a new look, and a lots of talent; in addition to the experienced players. The new coach was Mike Lowe and he brought valuable coaching experience to the team. There was a new look — many new faces joined the team and these new faces had an abundant of talent.

The returning players from last year's team were Nikki Pipkin, Dawn Hale, Eva Kreimann, Yvonne Fuentes, Stacy Marty, and Belinda Eschrich. These players helped the new faces adjust to their positions with their encouragement.

Stacy Marty and Yvonne Fuentes led the team with their offensive and defensive abilities. The Junior Varsity Softball Team had the best pitcher in the league — she was Kristen Lawson. Lawson had relief help from Linda Banbury.

Swimming Strokes to the Top

Once again the favorite to win their eighth Sierra League Championship in the last nine years, the Girls' Varsity Swim Team, coached by Scott Massey and Camille Brunsdon. The girls were coming off their second fabulous C.I.F. Championship season. The C.I.F. stars were Young Hee Choi, Sherri Smith, Joyce Hitchcock, Marci Cantu, and Susan Schoemann. Also other returning letterwomen from last year's team filled the rest of the Varsity starting lineup, and these girls also made a strong Junior Varsity team. Coach Massey, Coach Brunsdon, and the girls were confident of winning although they were worried about their other competitors such as West Covina High School and Walnut High School.

Coached by Scott Massey and Camille Brunsdon, the Boys' Varsity Swim Team was trying to seek their first League Swimming Championship. The boys were one of the favorites to w the league crown, but they face heavy competition from Los Altos Hig School and West Covina High Schoo The boys' team were led by returnin league champions Darin Blizzard, Jorg Carazo, and Greg Salvinski. A host returning lettermen bolstered by talented freshman group helped bo the Varsity and Junior Varsity Team their hopes of victory.

Track — Striding to Excellence

The Varsity Track Team had a very good season. They had many returning runners who were ready to face their competition. Though they had strong competiton from West Covina High School and Rowland High School, they had the ability to run well.

The leaders of the team were Danny Akins, Travis Akins, Mike Wanstreet, and Chris Cruz. These runners provided valuable experience and encouragement to the veteran runners and to the new runners. In addition to these nuggets, there were many returning lettermen who were valuable in their particular events. They were Dwayne Daniels, Gene Fortenberry, Eugene Chi, Tony Mendoza, Richard Narramore, David Nelson, Tom Noone, Nathan Oishi, Al Quinonez, Scott Richardson, and Kyle Wadsworth.

For the Frosh-Soph Track Team, this was a year of new faces. Many of the runners from the previous year had moved up the Varsity level this year; but they still had many talented runners such as Sterling Jackson, Gilbert Salazar, Frank Quinonez, Sam Chacon, and Dave Reichling. Other returning runners were Victor Geanakos, Greg Lindley, Richie Liu, Reed Parr, Abraham Rivera, Doug Vincent, and Richard Wang.

This was a very hard working team. Everyone motivated one another with their competitive spirit and drive.

Girls' Track — A Dedicated Team

"Dedication was the reason that made the Girls' Track Team a winner on and off the field," exclaimed Coach Roger French. With sixteen returning experienced girls and a group of other girls willing to work made this team a hard working team.

Experienced leaders such as Gina Mendoza, high jumper and hurdler, and Gilda Ochoa, sprinter and long and triple jumper, led the Girls' Track Team with their patience and understanding.

The Girls' Track Team was strong in many fields. In the distance events, they were probably the strongest. Returning in the distance events were Gissela Pezo, Chris Lopez, Becky Lopez, Yasuko Okada and newcomers Darlene Flores, Vanessa Maldonado, and Michelle Esparza. All of these girls had proven themselves in Cross-Country or Track last year. Coach French was excited about the mile relay team. The girls who would be running the relay were Chris Lopez, Becky Lopez, Yasuko Okada and Darlene Flores. The Hurdlers consisted of Ann Villalino, Maria Wong, and Gina Mendoza. The shotput and the discus was handled by Lisa McDonald in addition to other track members.

Though the Girls' Track Team's competition came strongly from Walnut, Coach French's main objective for his girls was not the competition from other teams but the competition within themselves. French wanted each of his girls to strive for their goals and see where their capabilities take them.

Golf Tees Off to a Great Season

"This year's Golf Team should have a successful season," claimed Coach Jim Baucher. There were five returning players who were Brian Lee, Greg Hurtado, Nick D'Virgirgilio, John Odam, Eric Hernandez that led the team with their experience. Though Golf is an individual sport as well as a team, these returning players made sure the newcomers felt comfortable playing as a team as well as an individual.

The past five years, the Wilson Golf Team's main competition had come from Los Altos High School but they hoped for better success against them. Greg Hurtado and Brian Lee led the team in hopes of a victorious season.

As coach of the Wilson's Golf Team Baucher's job was to oversee the go program, coordinate matches, provid transportation and etc. but his main ob jective was to see each player plays a an individual as well as a team an keep a positive outlook about the ability.

Badminton — A Building Year

Co-Ed Badminton may look simple, but in reality, Badminton is a physically tiring sport. Every day for two hours, each member of the Varsity and Junior Varsity Team worked out. Though they were tired, they enjoyed the competitive spirit and the satisfaction of playing. For both the Varsity and Junior Varisty teams, the playing team consisted of six boys and six girls.

The Varsity Badminton Team was in a building year. There were many new faces especially on the Girls' Varsity Team. The Boys' Varsity Team had five returning players who were Captain Mike Lin, Wen Kai Lin, Co-Captain Eugene Chiqu, Steve Liang, and Andy Wang. These players led the team with their ability.

For the Varsity Badminton Team, Nogales High School and Los Altos High School were their strongest competitiors.

The members of the Badminton Team had one goal — they wanted to do the best that they can in whatever the situation.

This was also a building year for the Junior Varsity Badminton Team. Many of the players from last year's team had moved up to the varsity level. But there were many returning Junior Varsity players that aided the team with their outstanding skill and leadership; they were Phillip Ho, Paul Philabaum, Suely Chesn, and Lisa Kim.

Like the Varsity Badminton Team, their strongest competitiors were Nogales High School and Los Altos High School.

Tennis — A Youthful Season

1985 was a successful year for the Varsity Tennis Team. The team had only four returning players who were Joe Dawson, Robbie Schneidermann, Al Ortega, and Mike Aragon, all of these returning Seniors received Sierra League 1st Team Honors last year. These players led the new players with their spirit and encouragement.

Despite the youth on the team, they remained strong but they faced tough competition from Los Altos High School and Nogales High School. With the guide of Coach Fran Cavezza, he led the team to its 8th consecutive winning season and to its 4th consecutive C.I.F. winning season.

The Junior Varsity Tennis Team had five returning members who were Phi Trong, Steve Lee, David Kim, Bruce Smerker, and Keith Franie. They were very strong in competition. B throughout the year, there we players who were interchanging be ween the Varsity or the Junior Varsi level. Many different lineups were use in the preseason.

Even with players interchanging the levels, the Junior Varsity Team r mained tough. Their strongest compe tion came from Nogales High Scho and Los Altos High School.

Students Work for More

C.S.F.

The California Scholastic Federation strived to become a more active club by promoting "scholarship thru service." The members provided tutoring on campus without fee and sponsored the C/Cal State College Night, held in early November, as well as other events. The membership requirements remained stringent, yet the participation among members increased.

Pauline Jones
President

J.S.A.

The Junior Statesmen continued their successful work on and around campus in their second year as a club. Wilson students were challenged on issues such as Abortion, Human Rights, Foreign Policy, Wally George, and Heavy Metal Music. The J.S.A. took an active role in student affairs, expressing campus problems at District School Board meetings and leading student involvement in the 1984 Republican and Democratic campaign.

Under the new leadership of advisor Al Greigo and president Richard Narramore, the club attended and was an outstanding participant in two statewide conventions, elections of state and local officers, T.V. shows, and conferences throughout the Greater Los Angeles Region.

Basically, the members of J.S.A. travelled more, spent more, argued more and learned more than any other club on campus. For what purpose? The pursuit of truth, the challenge of becoming an educated citizen, and the wisdom to understand and make judgements on the problems man creates for himself.

Academic Decathlon

For the 1984 Academic Decathlon team, preparation meant waking up at early hours in the morning to make it to zero period classes.

The objective? Ten weeks of studying for the Novermber 17th competition of the Los Angeles County Academic Decathlon in Downey.

The ten categories of the competition included math, science, English/literature, economics, history, fine arts, essay, speech, interview and super-quiz; the super-quiz being Megatrends.

Guided by adviser Jim Kelly, as well as various teachers who helped in specialized subjects, the nine members of the decathlon team prepared for the competition.

On the "Big Day," the team spent nine hours at Warren High School going against 52 other schools as well as those from our district.

The Korean Club consisted of thirty-five members, who had interest and appreciation of Korean culture. The club planned many activities to have learning experiences, fellowships, and fun. To learn about Korean Culture, they enjoyed films about Korean Culture and had Dr. Chai as a guest speaker to discuss about chiropractic and acupuncture. They had fund raisers, picnics and parties, went to roller-skating and ice-skating rinks and had other field trips. They also had a football game (seniors vs. underclassmen) to know each other better and a basketball game with another club.

The officers were Jin Park, President; Jim Jung, Vice President; Ho-Sung Yi, Secretary and Taek Lim, Treasurer. With the advice from Mr. Lubin, the Korean Club had a great year.

Journalism, Write on

About every two weeks, the campus was bombarded with copies of Paw Prints, Wilson's student publication. The paper geared itself toward a magazine format and had since undergone many changes in graphic design.

Under the guidance of Georgia Moore, Paw Prints once again won first place for the fourth year in a row from the Columbia Scholastic Press Association, and the American Scholastic Press Assn. Staff members also participated in the California Journalism Assn. convention in Anaheim, Calif. last October.

In March, the staff competed in the annual Southern California journalism association on-the-spot write offs at Montevillo High School. All those who placed, attended the finals at Walnut High, April 20.

Aside from putting out a student newspaper, Paw Prints has also been involved in outside projects. During Thanksgiving, the staff raised money for famine victims in Ethiopia. For Christmas, they cooperated with Key Club in their annual food drive.

As an open forum for the student body, Paw Prints' objective was to serve as a voice for the spectrum possible of the student population and inform the campus of current matters in an accurate and objective manner.

"How we've grown!" was one of the best ways to describe our Wilson Key Club. With over 100 members, the club was still growing and has acquired a co-advisor; Mrs. Carol Tebbs, in addition to faculty advisor Mr. Chuck Fisher, and Kiwanis advisor, Mr. Howard Kinsley. To strengthen the club from within and promote leadership, the club had added committee chairmen and class representatives to the board.

Service was the club's main objective, and the club had emphasized its program "Manhours for Mankind" with regular visits to a convalescent hospital and local home for yardwork. The club had also participated in a Christmas food drive, Cerebral Palsy Telethon, March of Dimes, School service projects, Special Olympics, and the list went on.

Fun was also the name of the game. The club held monthly social activities and occasional interclubs, such as ice-skating, pizza parties, picnics, or just a plan get together. The highlight of the year was the annual Key Club convention where clubs from California, Nevada and Hawaii spend a weekend of service, fun, and learning experience. To defray the cost of the convention, the club held a car wash a thon, candy cane sale and carnation sale.

How did you sum up Key Club? Service and fun.

Female Domination on Wilson Campus?

Interex

Interex club had twenty members and was growing. The club was interested in foreign cultures and foreign languages. Once a month a meeting was held to discuss further accomplishments. Each year the interex club sponsored the exchange students that came to Wilson High school.

The interex club had a candy sale and other fund raisers. The club also went to Magic Mountain and had a Pizza party. Every year a banquet is held previous to summer vacation.

Fine Arts

Fine Arts Club began the year with many goals in mind.

One goal was to raise as much money as possible to help lessen the cost of buses. That goal was accomplished early in the year with a very successful candy sale.

Another goal was to see the Broadway play Cats. With the help of Mrs. Hill, the Club was able to purchase seventy tickets to the play.

The main purpose of the Club was to offer a variety of Arts to all the members.

The Club would not have been able to accomplish its goals without the enthusiasm of advisor Mrs. Mullenbach.

Considering the fact that the Fine Arts Club is only three years old, we have become one of the largest clubs on campus.

They were involved in several fund raisers which included applying Halloween make-up at the Puente Hill Mall and the tapings of various T.V. shows. The Players also competed in the Fall and Shakespeare festivals, which gave them the excitement of competition and a chance to show off their talent.

This year could not have been such a success without the direction and guidance of Dona Hill and the club officers, President; Kari Hobson, Vice President; Rachel O'Sullivan, and Secretary/Treasurer; Holly Sweet. And of course, the program could never have worked without the participation and cohesiveness of the group as a whole.

Royal Wilson Concert Choir

The Choir started their performances with a festival at Mission Viejo High School. Hard work and preparation with their new director, Ms. Montpas, resulted in an excellent adjudication. The concert season included concerts at the Diamond Bar Country Club, Measa Robles and Cedarlane schools. Te Winter Concert at St. Matthews Church had a variety of classical music and familiar Christmas carols. The Follies, the Spring Concert, and an S.C.V.A. festival were also part of their second semester performances.

In addition to their performances, the choir participated in a choir room and got to know each other better at their Halloween and Christmas parties, and spring picnic. The choir ended the year with our traditional choir banquet and the satisfaction of knowing they had a successful year. The choir hoped that future concert choir members would continue to strive for excellence in music.

New Clubs on Campus

Sindicated Surf

Hey Dude! The Sindicate Surf Club was one of the new clubs on campus. The image of the Sindicate Surf Club, was one of skepticism. We were thought to be a bunch of careless hodads, which was true at times, but we managed to hold a few contests and watch some RAD videos. Many people asked why have a surf club at a valley school? Well, let us not forget that surfing is a growing sport and many students at Wilson surf at places like, Newport Beach, Huntington Beach and others. This club was brought about by popular demand. The school tried to abolish the club, but some hard debating kept the club intact. The club would like to give thanks to Mr. Wiersma, our advisor, for putting up with us and being there when we needed him. Surfing is a year round sport, but summer is the best time for rippin.

Something New

Something new was founded this year by a group of students who wanted more from student life than the usual academics, sports and activities. The club held Bible studies, discussions, and prayer twice a week, and conducted group socials as well as service projects. Despite some controversy surrounding Something New, the club continued to meet throughout the year and cold, windy meetings were held outdoors until the District Board ruled on the Equal Access Act, allowing the students to take refuge in a classroom. Despite these initial difficulties, the club's membership grew to over thirty dedicated members.

The College Corner is a place on the Wilson campus where students can go to learn more about colleges, which began five years ago.

In the College Corner there is a section for Peer Counseling. Debbie Higa, Kathy Barchick and Kalpana Reddy, who were peer counselors, helped students in many ways. They helped students fill out college applications, learn about scholarships, but most of all, they communicated with their peers.

Not just anyone could become a Peer Counselor. The person had to have an "A" or "B" average, be college bound, respected by peers and responsible. The peer counselors were well trained and willing to help anyone who asked for it.

Mr. Olson, the advisor for College Corner, believed that all seniors should be informed about colleges.

During the school year, there was a college night at La Puente High. There were seventy-five college representatives who talked to many students. The College Corner also distributed a paper called College Corner Contact which contained information about financial aid and general information about various colleges. The College Corner was a great asset to Wilson.

The 1984-85 Rally Squad had a busy year. They started in the summer with morning practices. They prepared themselves for Spirit Camp where they received many spirit awards. The squad then continued throughout the year cheering at foorball, basketball games, volleyball, water polo, wrestling, and soccer games.

The Varsity cheerleaders and mascots, led by Paula Meza, and the Varsity songleaders, led by Kathy Fabrizio, worked energetically to make this an outstanding year. The J.V. squads, led by Kerry Lopez and Kristen Lawson were also eager and excited, and showed great potential for the future.

The Rally Squad as a whole, headedby Laura Vialpando, was a very close group. Together they sold key chains, buttons, made posters, and performed at rallies to maintain great spirit throughout the year, and felt they represented Wilson.

Wilson Wildcattet Drill Team

Drill Team relaxes from summer camp.

The Wildcattet Drill Team has had a very busy year. They attended USA drill team camp and received superior ratings. After that, they headed into field season with the Wildcat Band and the Fabulous Tall Flags. The competition field show was filled with excitement and pizzazz and the Wildcattets especially loved their feature number to "Far From Over." They competed in many various parade and field tournaments throughout the year, including the Dodgers' Battle of the Bands competition. Even though the Wildcattets kept busy with the field show, they still continued on into their indoor season. They had five different performing groups; the large dance team, military team, small dance team, officers' team and solo. They competed throughout Southern California with drill teams from all over the world.

Tall Flag leaders, Jennie Johns, Teresa Gassman and Dawna McKenna show their outrageousness.

Congratulations! To the 1984-85 Fabulous Tall Flag Team. The team has had a very successful season taking trophies home to the Wildcat Campus after every parade and field competition. They earned a Sweepstakes at West Covina, three first place trophies at Chino, Chaffey and the Tournament of Champions and two second place trophies at Sierra Vista and Claremont. Also, two third place trophies at Los Altos and at the Chino Parade. The Tall Flag unit also accompanied the Wildcat Band to the Inaugural Parade in Washington D.C. Wilson was the California Representive, and it was indeed a great and exciting honor for both the band and the Tall Flags.

The team can attribute their success to many hours of hard practices and also to the talents of their leaders. They were, Theresa Gassman; Captain, Jennie Johns; First Lieu., and Dawna McKenna; Second Lieu. These Tall Falgs leaders had the tasks to design field show maneuvers.

Indoor Flags Work for Perfection

Indoor Flags

The Indoor Flag Team was comprised of the regular flag team. The sixteen member unit performed at Katella, Los Alamitos, Loara, and Marina. Due to the trip taken in January, to Washington, D.C., the tall flags were unable to compete in more competitions, but did a fantastic job at the ones they did perform at. With the help of their new advisor, Stephine Schroder, the team was a great success.

Mrs. Schroder choreographed the show and also designed the uniforms, flags, and sticks that were used along with uptempoed music. The team was flashy and proud. The many hard hours of practice payed off in great success. Congratulations to a job well done!!

The Wildcats March on to Victory

The Wildcat marching band began their highly successful 1984-1985 season with a two week tour of Hawaii where activities included several concerts and a parade through Kona.

Upon returning, they began the difficult task of learning the complex field show. This show was performed at all of our home football games as well as in competitions.

The competition season was extremely successful. The band began with two consecutive sweepstakes wins at West Covina and Sierra Vista. They went on to compete successfully at Claremont, Chino, Los Altos, Norwalk and at the Tournament of Champions.

After the competition season ended, they began work on the indoor music. The first performance was a December 6th winter concert. Then they began to work on the music for the spring SCSBOA Festival, where the band was given a rating by music judges. The Indoor Season ended with a spring concert on May 23rd. During the concert season, they had occasional outdoor performances at Disneyland, National City and defending the title as Battle of the Bands champions for the Los Angeles Dodgers. The year ended with a may 31st banquet and performances at the Baccalaureate and Graduation ceremonies.

Prowler . . . A Breed Above the Rest

Prowler Staff consisted of 15 weird people and a very lovable advisor. The yearbook staff worked hard throughout the year to produce this book which over 1,400 students purchased, and will look at it to remember their high school years. Most of the times we had many birthday parties, and parties for no reason at all but the staff got all their work done.

The staff had to meet five very important deadlines so the students at Wilson could have a yearbook. Anna and Anwar worked very nicely with each other and always got their work done ahead of time on the sports section. And then there were Summer and Sandra. Even though they had a hard time getting the metal club's picture, Summer noisily worked with Sandra who was quiet, to get all the pictures and stories for the clubs and organizations section finished. Then Little Angel did an excellent job on the faculty section putting her best into it and getting Mr. Besse's advice to help her. The senior section was completed by Karen Snyder who did her best as a first year member, and Debbie Oliver. The three undergrad sections were done by the three gossipping ladies of annual staff. Non-stop talking came from Judy Chin, Julie Luna, and Gina Fernandez. The wise and noble business manager and ad section editor Yvonne Vega shared knowledge about many things and managed to get everything done. The three busy photographers were Suzette Song, Kenny Murphy and Amy Inforzato. These three were the backbone of the yearbook because they took some of the best pictures we were able to use.

With the help and advice from our beloved Mr. Besse, we were able to put out this book. The yearbook takes a lot of time and effort and it is not something that is made over night by a yearbook fairy. Yes, this yearbook was produced by a bunch of high school kids, but it will be treasured by many even though there will always be complaints about the book. The Prowler staff hopes you enjoy the yearbook.

All Work and No Play!!!

Wow! I can't believe it. We made the final deadline and everything is in. I look back at the wild and crazy things we used to do in class. We let the radio blast; well, that was because the radio was broken, and we did bother Mr. Milhiser's 4th period class with all the food we used to tempt and tease with. Let me list all the places we ordered food from: Del Taco, McDonald's, Old World Deli, Numero Uno, Carl's Junior, and Del Taco, and Del Taco. We've had so many birthday parties and they were fun, especially Mr. Besse's birthday party with the little doll and the other little nifty things.

We put together a yearbook which contains 288 pages of memories and hard work and you all should be proud of yourselves. I've actually had fun! I look back and think about how we helped each other out when help was needed. We never turned around and said no to each other. Everyone helped everyone do each other's sections by naming unknown faces and making up corny captions. I hope you all got a lot out of it like I did.

What I'll always, and I know all of you will remember, is the times we had to gossip and "discuss" certain topics after "we worked hard" or during lunch time. Let's see, we talked about what people were up to and what was happening around school. Kenny, I hope you weren't embarrassed when Angela wanted to know about something; and Summer, I really liked the way your explained that to her. Sweet little Angel, do you now know who B. J. is? The gossipping sessions were great, too with Judy and Julie leading the discussion and Angela screaming her head off just talking.

Yvonne, we'll never forget the looks you had on your face to show the "look." Suzanne or alias Suzette, you always did what you were told to and you're a good girl with you new Mazda. And Gina, you were always cheerful and so dedicated you even came when you were really sick. Karen, you did your best and you did a fine job. The senior section isn't bad; it's pretty good. And last but not least the two people who I adore so much Anwar and Anna. You guys got along so well it was unbelievable! Wasn't it fun at Santa Barbara?

One last word, for all of you people reading this we did do a lot more than you think we did.

Thanks, and you all did a great job. I wish I had one more year, but good luck next year, Anna Kim.

Principal John Hyma speaks and commends the students at the annual District School Scholar Awards night.

Wilson Teachers at Their Best

We had one of the finest group of teachers and faculty members of any schools in the southern California area. The staff was dedicated and willing to help students learn. On many occasions, after everyone else had gone home, one could find a number of faculty members still hard at work and trying to help many students with their problems. These individuals showed their patience and support to the students through their desire to teach them to learn.

Among the faculty staff and within the departments there were also a number of new faces and changes made. We had Mr. John Rieckewald as the new assistant principal for the administrative services, Mr. Richard Bernier as the new assistant principal for discipline, and newcomer Mr. Hank Jannace as the activities director. We also had Mrs. Lavon LaFresnaye as the new attendance coordinator taking the place of Mr. Roger French, while he switched to teaching math in the mathematics department. Newcomer Mr. Gomez was added to the Math Department also. In the Social Science Department we had a new face added — Mrs. Toni Fosnes — while in the Science Department we had Mr. Harry Gunther join the list of faculty members. In the music department, Mrs. Debbie Montpas was added to the list, while Ms. Dorothy Lowry and Mrs. Carol Tebbs were the newcomers in the English Department. In the ESL Department Mrs. Cami Brunson, Mrs. Karen Jones, Mrs. Rosa Lizardi, and Mrs. Pat Mullenbach were the new faces added here.

Overall, the new and the old staff members all helped to make the year what it was — an exciting, prosperous year full of new school programs, academic achievements, new athletic programs, and new club activities.

Board of Education

The Hacienda-LaPuente Board of Education accomplished many new programs and regulations for the benefit of the entire student body. They implemented new grade requirements to provide a better background for many of the students when they enter college or look for a job.

They made many new improvements and policies regarding the schools in the Hacienda-LaPuente School District.

In the future, the school board hopes to see many of the students succeed in life and they hope to see the entire Glen A. Wilson student body and faculty staff continue to strive for excellence through their hard work and dedication.

The Hacienda-LaPuente Board of Education takes a breather during one of the meetings while discussing the new policies pertaining to school.

Administrative Staff

The year was full of new changes, new faces, and new improvements and the Glen A. Wilson Administrative Staff helped to make all of this happen. Many new changes occurred throughout the Administrative Staff, such as the changes in the position of jobs. These staff members proved their dedication to the school by accepting new responsibilities with enthusiasm and showed it through excellent work. The administrative staff worked hard to make new policies and rules such as tenth grade counseling, new grade requirements, instructional improvements, new scholarships, and a career and college corner. They also included an honors assembly, reorganized the guidance office, increased the number of rooms so each teacher could have his own room, provided new textbooks, and included an inservice training program for the benefit of the teachers.

In the future, the administrative staff hopes to have more classroom computers, more field trips, and more teacher conferences. They also hope to increase the attendance system with a computerized system, they hope to have certain rooms carpeted and air conditioned, and they hope to increase teacher salary, decrease the class load, and expand class offerings by offering classes in the afternoon.

Counselors

The counseling staff of Glen A. Wilson was an important and essential factor to many of the students because they helped them with their classes and schedules. The counseling staff also made many improvements for the benefit of the students and their parents. They had computer scheduling and they made an effort to see every student in the school for a credit check. They also made new policies and regulations, some of which would go in effect in the year 1988. One new policy was that in the report cards they would include a credit check, and the student's present g.p.a. along with his or her grades. This would help to keep the child and parents up to date. In the future the counseling staff hopes to have individual computer terminals so it will be more convenient to make any changes in the student's records.

Office Staff and Media Center

Mrs. Stedman gets busy as she prepares to do her paperwork.

The year could not have been complete without the help of the office staff and the media center. The office staff kept the school organized and efficient while the media center strived to help students find books or help them in any way they could. They kept the school orderly and kept track of everything going on among the entire student body.

Bottom: This teacher loves staying fit and in top condition. She may have given you one of the toughest workouts ever. (For answers turn to page 157.)

Social Science

The Social Science department played an important part in the education to many of the students. The classes and policies were basically the same and no new changes had been made. In the future, the department hopes to develop a new economics course which will be a graduation requirement and they also plan to redesign the freshman class offerings hoping to include more world history. This, they believe, will benefit the students in the long run.

Mathematics

The Mathematics department helped many students with their education. There were more students taking college preparatory mathematics and there had been a more improved general feeling toward education. The students and teachers both had been willing to work for this and to improve their education.

In the future, the mathematics department hopes to improve the math program, see the class sizes get smaller, increase the number of teachers, and get computers involved in the classes.

The Foreign Language department helped many students learn new things such as different cultures and different languages. They provided new textbooks and audio lingual materials to each student. They also included a language lab classroom for the student's use. In the future, the Foreign Language department hopes to provide each student who desires to learn a foreign language, and an opportunity to study it. They hope to increase the staffing in order to accomplish this demand and they also hope to offer other languages not presently offered such as Japenese, Chinese, or Latin.

Business

The Business Department was a major factor in the education of many students. They taught such courses as accounting, speedwriting, and typing to classes on how to work computers. The department also had many new developments. They received six more IBM personal computers through ROP, and they introduced a new class — speedwriting, which replaced shorthand. With this class a student was required to take only one year of it, where in shorthand, two years are required.

For new developments in the future, the Business Department is planning to expand the typing classes, and add a Business Principles II class in. They also hope to enlarge the programs and add a new teacher as well. Hopefully they would also like to receive more computers and add a Word Processing class in, too.

Industrial Arts

Industrial Arts Department taught several useful and handy classes to many of the students. The classes ranged from drafting, woodcarving, metal, and auto workshops, to classes on how to take and develop photographs. Many of the students made their own projects with the knowledge they received from the teachers. With some help, they learned many new skills which would come in handy to them in the near future. The department as a whole hopefully would like to continue with enthusiasm in teaching the students new and interesting skills.

Music

The Music Department had one of the most productive seasons than in any other year. The Wilson High Band was chosen as the California Representative to the Inaugural Parade for the President of the United States, which was the biggest honor in the district. The band was also the current champions of the Los Angeles Dodger's Battle of the Bands competition. This was the second time in a row they won it. The band also participated in the Rose Parade which was their second time and they hope to return in the coming years.

The Music Department also had a new teacher added to it. Mrs. Debbie Montpas was the new Choral teacher and she helped the Chorus acheive many numerous awards. The Chorus was honored at a festival in Mission Viejo and they received a standing ovation for their performance. Their staff accompianist, Katy Mayne, helped the Chorus with their success also.

Overall, it was the year where more sweepstakes were won in Band, Drill Team, Tall Flags, and Chorus. For the near future, the Music Department hopes to continue to be of service to the school and community, support athletic programs whenever possible, and continue to represent our district in all possible ways.

Art

The Art Department offered many interesting and enjoyable classes to students. They taught such classes as Ceramics, Drawing, and Painting. Many students learned how to make new and useful objects such as with ceramics. Many also learned more about painting and drawing and developed their own skill. For the future, the Department hopes to continue with their success in teaching students newer and more interesting ideas about art.

The Home Economics Department taught many students, especially girls, such things as cooking, marriage, and family. The Department as a whole consisted of one teacher — Mrs. Evelyn Schneider. She taught many useful and interesting ideas to the students and even taught other subjects, such as one about clothes, as well. For the future, she hopes to continue doing a good job in teaching many students such duties which will come in handy some day.

English

The English Department had many new teachers and developments. They received a grant of $20,000 to improve the students' writing skills and developed many new programs which all benefited the students.

The department also had many new faces added and they all worked hard to teach students new skills. For the future, they hope to add an additional class of Journalism and continue to encourage students to enjoy reading and writing.

Career Center

The Career Center was a very essential factor to many of the students. It helped them learn more about colleges, universities, and scholarships. The Career Center also provided information on financial aid and housing. It guided students, mainly seniors, on what career or school they should attend. It also contacted representatives from colleges to come and visit the school and students. For the future, the Career Center hopes to keep up the good work in helping students with their choice of career or college.

Football Workouts With Jane Fonda

The Los Angeles Rams, the Raiders and the Wilson Wildcats, all are football teams, but what other thing do they have in common? They all shaped up the same way, by doing aerobics. Aerobics was no longer just for women. During the summer aerobic-mania hit the Wilson Wildcat football team in full force.

The aerobic class took place during the summer months of July and August, twice a week for about an hour. This class was specifically for the football team. The only other people allowed in the class were the two aerobic instructors from a nearby health club.

These aerobic classes were part of a conditioning program. It was for the purpose of building the players endurance and flexibility to help them play better during the game. The exercises done in this class were a combination of basic aerobic moves along with typical exercises. This may sound simple, but it was done nonstop.

When the idea of having aerobics was first brought up, the team members were somewhat skeptical. In fact, they thought it would be embarrassing. But once they realized they were not alone and they were all in it together this helped the team feel more relaxed and at ease.

The team members believed they benefited greatly from these aerobic classes. Although this was the first time these classes were used and the response from it is positive, the decision of continuing these aerobic classes, only time will tell.

Wildcat Band Vacations in Hawaii

Within six months, the Wildcat Band made two successful trips, the most recent to Washington and the previous to Hawaii in the Summer. The Hawaii trip lasted for ten days and included a considerable amount of exposure for the band through performances and tours.

The fundraising for the trip was not as extensive as it was for the Washington trip. In the case of the Hawaii trip, most band members paid the full price, although a few raised the full amount. As a result, the participation did not include the whole band.

The trip was still a success, according to Band Director Gil Adams. In his words, the trip was "beneficial, educational, and enjoyable." One senior commented, "It was a lot more fun than going with your parents. The independence made the trip more exciting!"

It must have been an exciting trip because the band stayed on two islands while touring three. These three islands were Oahu, Hawaii, and Kona.

At the first stop, the island of Oahu, the band enjoyed the most public exposure. Concerts and parades were held at Pearl Harbor, Pearl Ridge, and at the Royal Hawaiian. Tours were made of these attractions as well as at the Polynesian Cultural Center, Waikiki Beach, and Haunama-Bay, where members of the band participated in such activities as snorkeling and diving.

The main Island of Hawaii was the second stop. Here the band toured the Black Sand Beach, The Orchid Nursery, and Volcano National Park. While on a trip to Kona to perform in a benefit for the March of Dimes, the band stopped at Parker Ranch and the Akaka falls.

Although this trip was forgotten by non-band members amidst the excitement of the Washington trip, it will always be remembered by those who went. Opportunities like this were truly rare and those that took part were fortunate enough to be part of the Wilson 'Wildcat' Marching Band.

1984: A Look at the Present and the Future

It was a thoroughly unsettling experience to watch, in the year of 1984, the similar aspects in the film of George Orwell's book "1984." Written 35 years ago, enough of what Orwell predicted had happened in Amrica and Europe to make possible the rest, and this was exactly what Director Micheal Radford conveys in his film. The city of London in this film was a derelict place where shabbily uniformed people lived a primitive, regimented and cheerless existence, worn down by a constant state of war. The miracles of modern technology were evident only in the television screens that bombarded the populace with Big Brother's propaganda — and at the same time constantly monitor every person's existence.

Amidst this tolitarian society where even romantic love is outlawed, there is at least one man, Winston Smith (portrayed by John Hurt), who dares to confess his true feelings about his life to his diary. He eventually attracts the attention of a young woman, Julia (portrayed by newcomer Suzanna Hamilton) which whom he establishes a relationship. Winston and Julia know that they will eventually be discovered, but decide that whatever few moments of happiness that they can enjoy will be worth their inevitable fate. The villian is a high-ranking Inner Party member portrayed by Richard Burton (his final film performance of an illustrious career) that spells doom for Winston and Julia. In the end, Winston is brain washed into acknowledging that "2 and 2 equals 5," a form of the double think (the ability to hold and accept two contradictory thoughts, thus ending another threat to society.

It was an unsettling movie, one that did not offer a traditional plot with a happy ending. But it was a movie that like the book, gave one cause to ponder life around him and the direction that our society might be headed.

The Beautiful Ex-Miss America

In September of 1983, Vanessa Lynn Williams became the first black women ever to wear the crown of Miss America. In July of 1984, she became the first Miss America ever asked to give up that crown.

Vanessa Williams was asked to give up her title by pageant officials due to Bob Guccione's decision to publish nude photos of her, taken 2 years earlier, in Penthouse. Pageant officials said that "Miss America must serve as a wholesome role model for young women across the country. Even so, there was nothing in the Miss America contract prohibiting what Vanessa Williams did.

Albert J. Marks, executive director of the pageant, was quoted "If Vanessa were to remain as Miss America it would seriously jeopardize and irrevocably damage the entire Miss America pageant program." Although a lot of people felt the same way, many took Vanessa's side. Vanessa did not have to give up her crown, she could have fought for it, but she "chose" to relinquish her title and spend her time fighting Guccione. She did not intend to give up until she won back her dignity and the respect of all the people she let down. "I've made a terrible erro in judgement," said Vanessa, "and I know I'll have to pay for it as long as I live."

Guccione laughed at the idea that the scandal would damage Vanessa. He claimed, "It's made her by far the most famous Miss America that ever lived." The September issue of Penthouse featuring Vanessa made well over 4 million above the usual gross newsstand sale of Penthouse.

Famine in Ethiopia

The problem of starvation has hit thirty of the fifty African countries in the last ten years. More than 150 million people in Africa were threatened by starvation. In Monzambique years of drought were followed by hurricanes and widespread floods.

In Ethiopia food was not the only problem; getting food to the starving was hindered by a guerrilla war going on there. The drought produced a flood of refugees — Sudan, once a nation expected to be the bread basket of Africa, become the new home of 2.5 million Ethiopians and Sudan could not feed its own population.

There was no easy or quick solution. Countries of the West began to respond to the problem along with an outpouring of money by individuals in Western Europe and the U.S.A.

Bob Geldof of the Boomtown Rats organized a group to record a song in order to raise money for the famine victims of Ethiopia. The song, "Do They Know It's Christmas" was recorded by 37 top musicians in a London studio. Dubbed "Band Aid," it consisted of such groups as Duran Duran, Culture Club, Frankie Goes To Hollywood, U2 and Wham to name a few. The $2 single raised over millions of dollars and was on its way to Ethiopia through Band Aid trust, an organization of rockers and business executives.

Months later, Bob Geldof also helped put together an American group to sing a song and help out the starving victims. This one was called "USA For Africa" and it was recorded right after the American Music Awards. The song written by Michael Jackson and Lionel Richie, was produced by Quincy Jones. The group consisted of such superstars as Tina Turner, Cindi Lauper, Shiela E., and Ray Charles. This song, along with a double album, other unreleased songs, and a video was put out in March. Talk about a live performance for the song was also brought up.

Democratic Convention in San Francisco, California

San Francisco, California was the place for the Presidential Democratic Convention. During the month of July, Democrats were in San Francisco conducting their business to choose their presidential candidate for the 1984 Presidential Election. 5,300 delegates and alternates were there to pick Walter Mondale, Jesse Jackson or Gary Hart as their candidate.

The city of San Francisco proved to be a great host city. It is a place of beauty, vivaciousness, and is dramatic. San Francisco is funky but clean, spunky but elegant and it has its crazes but preserves the old.

Mondale slipped a little because of the feminists and the mine field workers, but he proved to be ahead of Hart and Jackson.

Even before the convention started, Mondale knew he had a better than a great chance to be that presidential candidate. Democrats voted overwhelmingly for Walter Mondale, and he chose Geraldine Ferraro as his running mate.

Perfect Tens

The U.S. Men's Gymnastics Team was triumphant during the 1984 Summer Olympics. This outstanding team captured a gold for the team championship for the first time in eighty years for the U.S.

The World Champion Chinese team proved to be America's strongest competition. Bart Connors, Tim Daggett, Mitch Gaylord, Jim Hartung, Scott Johnson, and Peter Vidmar worked together in order to be victorious over the Chinese team.

The six team members have gone to other important achievements since that glorious summer of 1984. The gymnastics team has toured all over America showing their stuff and showing the young kids what gymnasts were like. They went to Las Vegas bringing young children and their parents to the Strip so the kids can get a glimpse of them.

Since then, they have appeared on posters, videos, and they were pursuing their other goals because they attained that goal to become the best gymnasts in the world. Mitch Gaylord has become actor, model, and even a sex symbol amongst the teens. Bart Connors sports-casts during gymnastics competitions. Tim Daggett was the only one left in the gymnastic circuit. He still had to prove to himself that he was good. Tim Daggett did prove his point and won the American World Cup for gymnastics on March 3, 1985.

These were the boys of summer and they will remain famous for their achievements, patriotism and pride.

India's Night of Death

Early December at 11:00 P.M. at a Union Carbide pesticide plant on the outskirts of Bhopal, India pressure began to build up in the tank containing the 45 tons of methyl isocyanate. 56 minutes past midnight, the substance escaped into the air and formed a vast, dense fog of death that was directed towards Bhopal.

By the week's end more than 2,500 people died and in all 150,000 people were treated at the very few hospitals. Most of the dead had succumbed because their lungs had filled with deadly fluid causing the equivalent of death by drowning.

All forms of life died that were within the range of the Union Carbide gas. This was the latest in a series of major industrial mishaps around the world, some with immediate fatal results, other lingering, long term consequences.

It was noted in the Time magazine that a farmer was lying in bed when he heard several thumps at a nearby dairy farm he saw his own cows dead on the ground. Then he stated that his eyes began to smart painfully and he thought that it was a plague, the end of the world, a nuclear bomb, or an earthquake.

For all the people who died, they were thrown into a pyre and rows upon rows of pyres burned the dead bodies all through the night. For those who survived the tragedy, literally thousands upon thousands with bandages over their eyes and suffering from the gas fumes left Bhopal on foot, by train or by any means they could leave that deadly place.

Missing Children

Of the approximately 1.8 million children who are reported missing each year, ninety to ninety-five percent are likely to be runaways or youngsters abducted by a parent involved in a custody fight, but anywhere from 6,000 to 50,000 missing children are presumed to be victims of "stranger abduction." A crime of cruelty usually committted by pornographers, or childless psychotics bidding desperately for parent hodd commit this sad crime.

These people have psychological problems. The psychotic is usually a woman who has lost a baby or cannot conceive and steals a child to fill the void. The profiteer is a criminal exploiter who sells babies to pornographers or adoption rings. Another type under this heading is the kidnapping for ransom, but far fewer of those have occurred in recent years.

The "serial" killer: The best known case in recent history was in Atlanta when twenty-nine young blacks — ages seven to twenty-seven — were abducted and killed. Wayne Williams was convicted for the murders of two of the older victims.

Missing children has become a world-wide and over-publicized issue. Every night on the local or national news one can hear about a missing child. But many people are tying to overcome this problem. One way is to have sets of fingers prints. After the airing of "Adam", the F.B.I. will keep sets of fingerprints of children if their parents wished. Another method in the prevention of child abduction was having police officers talk to young children.

There was a new method of finding missing children. When a person went to the market, he could see milk cartons with faces and data about the missing children. It contained not only the milk, but information like their age, height, place of disappearance, and other statistical information.

There are many things being done to find missing children because child abduction is becoming a regular word in the English language. Too many helpless children are abducted, abused, and mistreated, and finally everything that can be done to prevent it is being done.

Child abduction not only scars the missing child's life, but it also haunts the parents and the ones who loved the child.

Republicans in Dallas, Texas

The Republican convention began on August in Dallas, Texas. It started off very well. Caution was overshadowed by new Republican campaign polls showing what the president exuberantly labeled "America's party" leading in 48 states losing only a skimpy total of 19 electoral votes in the District of Columbia, West Virginia and Minnesota.

A Dallas Morning News poll in Pivotal, Texas gave Reagan a lead of 29 percentage points. An Associated press survey of GOP delegates found 94 percent felt Reagan would carry their states.

Reagan even got help from the unexpected source, the Soviet Union. During the Convention Moscow announced it would buy an additional 100 million metric tons of United States wheat.

Latest figures from the Federal Election Commission show Reagan, uncontested for nomination, had a 5-million dollar surplus.

Reagan would no doubt win this election as expected, because of all the people's support for him. Reagan surprised a lot of people by having a great edge over the opponent.

Election '84

Ronald Reagan smiled as he stepped up to the podium to speak these words: "It seems we did this four years ago!" And 3,000 supporters cheered the president's re-election to another term. The score was: Reagan 513 — Mondale 13, an overwhelming landside for the Republicans in the presidential race. While Mondale won in two categories: Minorities and households earning less than $10,000 a year, Reagan swept every other imaginable category (including 49 states).

This election was the first to feature a woman on one of the two party tickets. That woman was Geraldine Ferraro. Also, the main issue in this election was really not an issue, it was patriotism. Patriotism ran rampant throughout the states and many Americans felt devoted to President Reagan. People tended to overlook the allegedly bad spots on his administration record and clung to the belief that "America is rebuilding itself to what it once was." An excellent performance in the two presidential debates by Mondale could not overcome his dull air.

However, the Democrats maintained their majority in the house and the Republicans lost two seats in the Senate. This was an ironic twist. Even though Reagan would be president for four more years, he would be denied his "ideological majority" of Republicans and conservative Democrats that he enjoyed in his first two years.

The future of both parties remained a mystery. George Bush was the heir apparent to the president's office. But the rising stars of the Democratic party (Mano Cuomo, Jessie Jackson, Geraldine Ferraro) might have other ideas.

McDonald Massacre

The McDonald's Massacre was the worst one-day slaughter in United States history. It happened in San Ysidro, two miles from the Mexican border. Shortly before 4:00 p.m. Wednesday, July 25, 1984, in 96° heat, James Huberty left his house after casually announcing to his wife, "I'm going to hunt humans." He drove to the red brick McDonald's in a Mercury and stepped in the door with a pistol in his belt and a 12-gauge shotgun and a 9mm UZI semi automatic rifle.

James Huberty called out, "Everybody on the floor." About 45 patrons were present. As they scrambled to comply, Huberty marched around the restaurant calmly spraying gunfire. In the first ten minutes Huberty killed 20 people, including four who ran out of the building.

The gunfire was so heavy that police at first assumed that more than one gunman was inside. Shortly after 5:00 p.m., as the gunfire slackened, one McDonald's employee crept up the basement stairs and out a back door, carrying information to San Diego police and the department's SWAT team. James Huberty was alone, and held no hostages. SWAT sharpshooters got their orders: "Fix him in your sights and take him out."

After watching Huberty for ten minutes through binoculars to make sure he was dead, police and hospital workers moved in on the scene. This slaying seemed particularly horrifying because many of the dead were children, and the murder site was an island of customary safety. The McDonald's massacre may horrify people for a long time.

Mary Lou Retton

Mary Lou Retton had a tremendous importance in the 1984 Olympics. She walked off with a silver and two bronze medals in the individual events, which no other American woman gymnast has ever done in the history of the Olympics.

Mary Lou became known throughout the world and appeared on the cover of national magazines and appeared on television.

Mary Lou had been living with a surrogate family in Houston for nineteen months. Mary Lou's real home with her family was at Fairmont.

Mary Lou enjoyed decorating her room with all the gymanstics ribbons that she won. She also liked to display her idols pictures, memorabilias, fan letters and also a picture of her true love, Matt Dillon.

Her personal coach, Karolyi, felt that Mary Lou was a very special girl because of her charm, her powerful body, and also, her drive and energy. Mary Lou's average practice schedule was four hours a day, seven days a week, almost every week of the year.

Mary Lou Retton had finally made it and she felt that it was all worth it to make her dream come true, and she could not be happier. She looked forward to her future goals.

Gerry!

Walter F. Mondale made history during the 1984 presidential election when he asked Representative Geraldine Ferraro to be his running mate. Geraldine became the first women ever on the ticket of a major political party.

For someone who never intended to go into politics, Gerry did quite well for herself. After graduation from high school, Geraldine landed a full scholarship to Marymount Manhatten College in New York. When Gerry was in Catholic school she had, for a time, considered becoming a nun. While Geraldine was in college she edited the school newspaper and even thought of becoming a journalist. But on the side, she took teacher education courses at Hunter College and went on to teach English in a New York public school.

Geraldine's career did not stop when she became a teacher; it only expanded. Geraldine went on to study law at night up at Fordham University. In 1960 she passed the New York State Bar Exam. During that same week, she married an old flame, John Zaccaro. Ferraro decided to keep her maiden name in tribute to her mother's sacrifices for her. Gerry and John had 3 children.

When her youngest daughter was in second grade, with the help of her cousin Nicholas Ferraro, the Queens District Attorney, she landed a prosecuting job heading a special bureau for victims of violent crimes. Geraldine had her job as Assistant D.A. for 4 years before the pressure and the emotion of her job got to her. She wanted to do something else. Something else was running for Congress.

In 1978, Geraldine ran for Representative for the Ninth Congressional District in New York. She was not favored to win the nomination but she did, defeating her opponent by almost 2 to 1. From there Geraldine's career had nowhere to go but up. In 1980 Gerry was re-elected by 58%, and in her last election she won by 73%. She was a serious prospect for New York's Senate race in 1986. She was the only woman in the Democratic leadership of the House of Representatives. And she was the first woman to chair the Democratic Platform Committee. After just 6 years in Congress, Geraldine had become not only one of the leading Democratic women politicians, but also one of the party's leading politicians.

LOS ANGELES COUNTY
ACADEMIC DECATHLON

Academic Decathlon

The gym was hot and tension was building up. This was not a basketball game, or even a gymnastics meet. This was the Super Quiz, one of the ten events of the Academic Decathlon Competition. This was the climax of the only competition nationwide that highlighted the academic side of high school students.

There were ten subjects in which students were tested; Essay, Grammar and Literature, Mathematics, Science, Social Science, Economics, Fine Arts, Speech, Interview, and Super Quiz. A test was taken on each on the day of the competition. Many people rated their performance as excellent, but most were pessimistic. The final results would not be known until the Awards Banquet.

Many people felt that athletics had been in the limelight for too long in the high schools in America, this competition was then created to give the academically inclined students a chance to showcase their talents. The competition grew rapidly. Forty-seven schools competed in the Decathlon, as opposed to eighteen schools just two years ago. The growth of involvement in this competition has also increased its competitiveness. The reputation of the competition prompted many corporations to become sponsors.

As a competitor, one finds that the material rewards were not as memorable as the aesthetic rewards. The new friendships, acquaintances, and competitive spirit were all worth more than the awards that were handed out on banquet night. The Academic Decathlon was an experience that nobody should miss.

Baby Fae

The miracle wonder of Baby Fae's life and death story. This was the first baboon to human transplant in medical history. The five-pound, month-old infant lived longer than any other person with an animal heart. Baby Fae had a short and struggling life from birth, to hope, and to death.

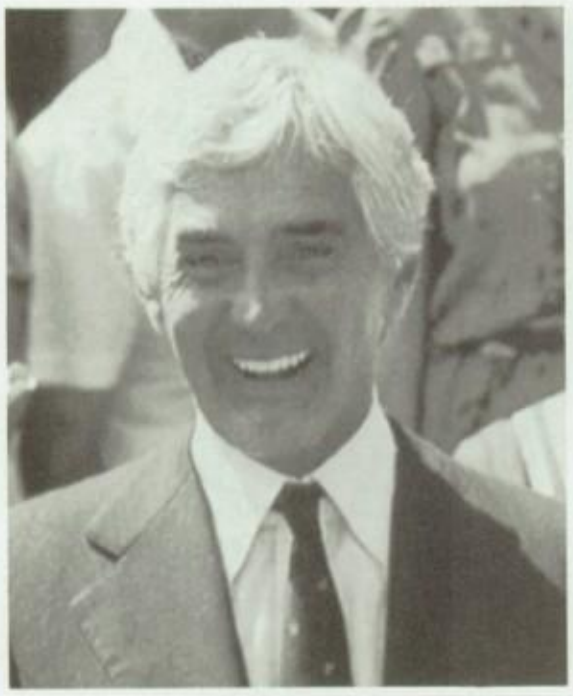
Baby Fae, whose real name was withheld at her parents request, was born in mid-October in Barstow, California. She was born with a serious heart problem. She had hypoplastic left heart syndrome, a fatal undevelopment of the heart that afflicts about one in 12,000 newborns.

The operation of the transplant took place at Loma Linda University Medical Center. Doctor Leonard Bailey headed the Seventh-Day Adventist hospital's surgical team that implanted the baboon heart in Baby Fae on October 26, 1984. Her condition improved steadily for the first two weeks after the transplant and she was living restfully without any respirators.

Within a week her kidney function deteriorated and required peritoneal dialysis. Because of this, her heart became unstable and failed to respond to intensive measures including closed cardial massage. She was put back on a respirator and administered a heart stimulant and anti-rejection drugs. This set-back lasted two hours until her weak heart gave out on her and she died. She died at 9 p.m., Thursday, November 15, 1984 at the Loma Linda University Medical Center.

From birth, to hope, to death, the life of Baby Fae was a miracle. The 5-pound, month old infant save a boost in medical science. From this episode, physicians hope to have gained knowledge to help save many lives of people with heart failure in the future.

Kenny Murphy



Not Guilty

It was in 1984 that the two year trial of automobile manufacturer, John De Lorean, came to an end. De Lorean, a former boy wonder in Detroit, had been caught in an FBI sting operation trying to arrange a deal for $24 million worth of cocaine to save his floundering business, De Lorean Motors. The alleged mismanagement of $17.7 million had apparently driven the 59-year old De Lorean to take such drastic measures. For two years, the pressures of trying to resolve his financial matters were set aside while the world focused on the sting operation and De Lorean's family life.

Throughout the trial, De Lorean's wife, Cristina Ferrare, 34, remained a model of wifely constancy. The mother of his two children, the gorgeous formal model stayed at De Lorean's side under the most difficult of pressures. Cristina was often referred to as "John's Rock of Gibraltar." De Lorean claimed that he wanted to win so that he could spend more time with her. Cristina was probably as effective in gaining support for him as was the expensive team of lawyers hired to defend him.

On August 16, 1984, De Lorean was acquitted and the couple fell into each others arms, sobbing with joy. However, apparently the pressures had been too much for them. Shortly after the trial, Cristina left John. To make matters worse, De Lorean's creditors filed suit against De Lorean in an effort to reclaim bankrupt De Lorean Motors.

Fads and Trends of '84-'85

Trend — (noun) — 1) the general direction of a coast, river, road, etc. 2) the general or prevailing tendency or course as of events, a discussion, etc. 3) a vogue, or current style as in fashions. (trend as defined in the Webster's dictionary).

It was a year when different trends were being set everywhere. Everyone wore things from gladiator sandals to sequined gloves. Prince also influenced the style of dressing with his lacy, racy creations. Michael Jackson mania also hit big — his trademark glove was being donned by many. The year also could not have been complete without the flourescent style of clothing. Everywhere you looked, you saw these bright, neon colors and most likely a freshman in them. You couldn't miss them because they flashed around in these loud colors. A new, swiss plastic timepiece called the Swatch also hit the market. They were decorated with a variety of colors and graphics that varied with the season. This little item certainly gave their japanese competitors a run for their money.

America's number one addition this year was Trivia. Games such as Trivial Pursuit caused a frenzy among many adults as the Cabbage Patch Kids did with the kids. Movies such as "Ghostbusters" and "Purple Rain" hit big with movie goers as with the Purple Rain soundtrack.

The British Invasion also came to our part of the country. Groups such as Wham, Duran Duran, Culture Club, Billy Idol, David Bowie, U 2, Bananarama, Eurythmics, and Frankie Goes to Hollywood made a name in the music industry. Concerts such as the Victory Tour and Bruce Springsteen were a huge success here. Comedy and science fiction such as Revenge of the Nerds, Bachelor Party, Beverly Hills Cop, 2010, and Dune were big box-office hits.

The greatest fad of all this year was patriotism resulting from the Olympics and the 1984 election. There was a big sense of devotion and love for our country. Olympic fever was also popular among the people as with the Olympic gold with our athletes. Olympic pins as well as English items were very big this year. Thus, the year of '84-'85 was certainly a year when new fads and trends were being set by all walks of life. As for the future, who knows what lies ahead.

A Tragic Death

Actor and Model, Jon-Erik Hexum, 26 died of a tragic death on October 12, 1984. While filming his new T.V. series "Cover Up," Hexum shot himself in the temple with a blank — loaded .44 Caliber Magnum pistol while playing Russian roulette. The impact of the gun-powdered-filled blank fractured his skull. After struggling for a week to save his life, doctor in San Francisco finally pronounced Hexum's brain dead. Hexum's heart was quickly transplanted into the chest of the owner of a Los Angeles Vegas escort service. By the request of Hexum, before he died, and his family, some of his other organs would be donated it to other needy people.

Hexum first came on to the public September of 1982 with his now-defunct T.V. series, 'Voyagers". In this series, Hexum played a voyager who helped the characters in American and World History be the way it was supposed to be as told by our history books. In 1983, he co-starred with Joan Collins in the movie "The Making of a Male Model." This Movie made Hexum famous for his physique and pretty boy looks plus he was established as the perfect male hunk. Hexum had a small role in "The Bear," a film about the late Alabama football coach Paul "Bear" Bryant. Hexum played Bryant's friend, Pat Trammel. In his New series "Cover Up," he played a CIA agent posing as a Male Model.

Hexum was a native of Tenefly, New Jersey, but his background was Norwegian. His mother, Gretha, and his father, Thor, were divorced when he was 7. Hexum's mother supported her son's interests. All his life, Hexum studied the performing arts. He took lessons in music and dance, mastering the piano, violin, and organ. During his college days at Michigan State, he played football and studied biomedical engineering. Hexum's desire to be an actor overpowered his engineering career.

The Burning Bed

It happened March 9, 1977, Francine Hughes burned her husband Mickey Hughes while her husband lay sleeping. She was a battered wife for twelve years before she so tragically put an end to it. The beating started at age sixteen, when they were married, until she was twenty-eight, the night Mickey died.

Francine and Mickey had four children, Christy, Jimmy, Dana, and Nicole. Although Francine divorced her husband in April of 1971, Mickey never honored it. If she tried to keep him away he would beat her. Shortly after the divorce, Mickey was in a near fatal accident. To relieve her guilty conscience, Francine took him under her wing, nursed him back to health and things became worse than they were before the divorce.

Soon after her nine month prison term, Francine met Robert Wilson, a sometimes country musician. Wilson had served ten years of his thirty year sentence for armed robbery. Francine and Wilson had a short courtship; within two months after they met, Wilson insisted they marry.

Shortly after Francine married Wilson, she and her children fell back into the same life they led before. Francine sometimes beat her own children. Once she even blackened both of Christy's eyes and beaten the 'tar' out of Nicole. Francine lives in Michigan with Christy, Jimmy, and Nicole. Dana stayed in Tennessee with Wilson.

Monday, October 8, 1984 on Channel four at 9:00 P.M., Francine Hughes was portrayed by Farrah Fawcet in the novel made for T.V. drama, The Burning Bed. Fawcet claimed this to be the most difficult role she had ever played. Nonetheless, she did an excellent job in portraying the battered and beatened Francine Hughes. There is a biography by Faith McNulty about the Burning Bed.

Indira Gandhi

Her real name was Kashmiri Brahmin. She was the daughter of Jawaharla Nehru, India's first prime minister, a wife and mother. To many, she was "Mataji" — revered mother. To others, she was simply known as "Mrs. G", "Madame," "Amma," — mother, and "She." Sometimes she was even called the empress of India. But to the rest of the world, she was Indira Gandhi.

At 9:08 am on October 31, 1984 Indira Gandhi was shot to death in front of her home by two of her Sikh bodyguards. She was on her way to her office when she met with her two killers, Beant Singh and Satwant Singh. As she greeted them, Beant pulled out his .38 revolver and fired five bullets into her stomach. As she fell to the ground, Satwant fired all thirty rounds of his automatic weapon. At least seven bullets entered her stomach, three into her chest, and one in the heart. She was immediately taken to the hospital, where a team of twelve doctors desperately tried to save her. It was not until 1:45 pm that an Indian news service sent a bulletin: "Mrs. Gandhi is dead."

Weeks before her assassination, Indira Gandhi received several death threats from Sikh militants. But she simply passed it off by saying "It's a risk you have to take. In politics you simply can't hide from people. My life has been one with India and it makes no difference to me if I die standing or in bed." Ironically the night before she died, she told a large crowd, "If I die today, every drop of my blood will invigorate the nation."

Indira Gandhi was sixty-six years old and prime minister for sixteen years before she was assassinated by her two bodyguards. It set off a chain of violence that left thousands of Sikhs dead, many more homeless, and whole entire neighborhoods destroyed. As the violence died down, Indira Gandhi's ashes were placed in urns and taken by train throughout the country before being scattered over the Himalayas.

23	24	25	26	27	28	29
30

That was a question many students asked towards the end of June and with good reason.

The school year was extended by five days, so the underclassmen and teachers were at school until June nineteenth instead of June fourteenth, which was the day that school ended in 1984.

The decision to lengthen the school year came from the State Board of Educators of California not just from the School Board of the Hacienda-La Puente District. The Board came to the conclusion that students were not spending enough time in school. "Despite the fact that students in the East spend more time in school had no bearing in the decision to attend the school year here in California," Mr. Rieckewald commented.

Not only was the school year lengthened but the amount of units for graduating increased by twenty credits. This increase in requirements will affect the class of 1988.

One issue that was discussed during the past school year, was about Physical Education. Many students complained that because of not able to take other academic courses. With the new increase in requirements needed to graduate, they were not able to take other academic courses. With the new increase in requirements, the students in the class of 1988 only need thirty units of Physical Education to graduate unlike past years when fourty units of Physical Education was needed.

In past years a student was not required to take a year of foreign language, but that rule has now changed. Not only have foreign language requirement gone up, but the amount of English classes and electives have increased.

The increase in requirements may seem a lot to incoming students, but they must understand the fact that colleges are also raising their requirements. When college bound students see the requirements to get accepted to a college, they will realize that the classes they will be taking at Wilson will help them in the future.

Summer Soliman

School During Summer?

Last summer, Wilson once again opened its doors for summer school. The last time summer school was offered to Wilson High students was nine years ago when it was cut by proposition 13. About thirteen hundred students took advantage of this opportunity by enrolling. The types of classes that were offered were excelerated — competency make-up and repeat classes.

The excelerated classes were offered to students to give them a chance to get ahead in their up coming year. It allowed students to take classes in the summer they would eventually have to take a full academic year. The advantages it gave the students who took the classes were that it allowed them to take other classes the following year in place of the one they took during the summer, and it helped lighten their class load as well.

The competency make-up class allowed students who had previously failed the test to pass and meet their graduation requirements. The repeat class had enabled student to make-up credits they lost or needed. Such classes were P.E., SRC and English.

Summer school began the following Monday after the normal school year had ended and lasted for six weeks with one day off on July 4th. The day was divided into two periods, each class lasted two hours and five minutes long. First period began at 7:45 and ended at 9:50 am. Second period followed at 10:00 and finished at 12:05.

Wilson was fortunate to receive enough money from the state to provide summer school for its students. In the future, head counselor Ken Olsen hopes to able to provide summer school once again to students only if it could be funded by the state. He felt that the past summer had been very successful.

The Victory Tour

The much talked about, long awaited, musical tour of the decade had finally came. Only superlatives could describe the Jackson's extravagant Victory Tour of 1984. It was the most lavish production ($10 million plus to mount), the most expensive (over $1 million week to operate), the most lucrative (an estimated $50 million gross) and surely the most sequined. But it wasn't the spectacle that crowds came to see; it was one person in shimmering socks with a sequined glove — Michael Jackson. His show-stopping performance sold-out stadiums from New York to Los Angeles.

What started out to be a much hyped controversial event, turned out to be the rock concert of the year. There was much talk that his tour would never kick off, but it had and it was no mere rock concert. The show was cooked up with razzle-dazzle effects: whirling red and green lasers, a tempest of explosions, 2,200 multicolored lights bathing the massive 160 foot five story stage. As the show began, it was a mixture of motion, Thriller, Victory, Disneyland, and Star Wars all mixed in one. As the show hit the road there was also much talk and controversy about the money matters and ticket sales. Talk about greed and fights over a ticket distribution finally made Michael call a press conference in which he stated he would donated all of his money he made from this tour to charity.

The concert of the year started off with a boy at Kansas City and made its way back to Los Angeles. Talk that the Jackson's might not have performed in Los Angeles also erupted. After much negotiations and headaches, the Jackson's came and performed at Dodger Stadium even adding three more dates here. But talk that these last days performances would not be performed also came out. After viewing over everything such as the fans, tickets, and money (est. $4 million in cash or the line) convinced the Jackson's had to go on for the people and for their home — L.A. Thus, the much awaited tour had finally come and the show performers lived up to their name giving a show stopping performances which would be long remembered even after the tour ended.

Hiya Mike,

So how's life? Hope great. I'm sorry to hear that you're going to another school. Now i won't have ~~some~~ someone ~~who~~ who pokes at my shoulder and sticks pens on my shirts. Boy was that fun. HA HA. I guess i got to know ya better. Like, what kinds of girls you like. (Disgusting) and how you hate mr. Milhoser. And how you like to hold on people's shoestring and say, "Don't move!" Boy that was neato burrito. ~~Well I hope~~ Also when you told me about the time you walked through the ~~the~~ bedroom and found two people there. Your expression on your face was funny. HA HA HE HE. Well, i hope you have a neato summer and i know you will. HA HA

Sandra & Xuan:

We finally made it, didn't we! Because of you both I survived and actually enjoyed my four years in Wilson. Although we had some bad times, it is the good times that I will always remember and cherish. I hope college will not separate us because you mean so much to me. I wish the future will bring you the best of everything.

Hi, how are you? Good I hope! As for me, thankful! I'm thankful to have such a wonderful friend like you. You're a great guy Murf, and I don't know what I'm going to do my senior year without you. Who am I going to discuss things with at the locker early in the morning. Whose car can I throw yogart on, and get away with it. Who's going to pester me to death to know what I'm thinking? I'm going to miss you for all these stupid reasons and for one big reason . . .

. . . I LOVE YOU!

So I wish you all the luck in the world! And congratulations for making it through these last four years at good ol' Glen A.

Dear Gayloz: The last of our three — not an ending, but a beginning. You kept us young, laughing, and active (your Mom and Dad were the oldest parents in Girl Scouts). Time passed so quickly — you went from baby booties and Barbies Country Camper to 3″ pumps and a red VW Rabbit in 16 years. Thanks for all the joy you have brought us. As you graduate, we pray for God's loving hand to guide your future in all you do.

Laura

Dear Laura (Oglo),

It seems like only yesterday that I called you squirt and told you soap tasted "just like candy." You've grown into a beautiful young woman. I am so very proud of you, for you have done such wonderful things in your 4 years of high school. Things I only dreamed of. I don't know where you are going to go to school next year, so I don't really know if you'll be living at home or not. I do want you to know that wherever you are, you can always depend on me (your favorite sis). I may not always approve of what you want in life, but I will promise to support your decisions. If ever you have a problem that you can't solve, or just need a little moral support, just come to your big sister and I'll help you.

Take care for now. I'll see you later.

Love always,
Susan (Boozy)

Richard & Kurt

You two made my first two high school years the best it could of been. Even though we had our differences, we always strived to work them out. There were times when it just all seemed so hopeless — "just words." But we didn't give up that easily, no-way. Not us. We've come too far to just throw it out the window. In fact, we've only just begun.

I may have not shown that I care for you two very much when I should of — .

I just took it for granted you knew. But I do — I care for you two so much.

More than you could even imagine.

Congratulations and good luck

with the years to come!

I love you!

Richard and Kurt!

I'm so proud of you guys!

Love your little sis,

CEC

Thanks

Thanks, My Grown-Up Yearbook Family —

To Kim and my 1981 staff:

Do you remember trying desperately to get the whole school lined up into '81 and ending up with a mob scene? How about deadline rush with pictures still missing and the beach with co-ed sand football?

To Arthur and my 1982 staff:

It was you who brought in the first place Taylor and third national honors, a first for me, too. I'll never forget the wonderful impromptu fashion show you guys put on while the girls were away at an assembly. And where didn't we go together — P.J. Pzazz, Taylor P.C., the beach, Magic Mountain?

To Justin and my 1983 staff:

Determined to outdo the 1982 group, you earned first Taylor and second national awards. You were the joy of my day, so competitive and eager to learn yet able to enjoy our fun times too.

To Liza and my 1984 staff:

The ultimate achievement of first Taylor national awards are yours. And, I'm sure that whatever it was, "Kojima did it!" What a pleasure to work with you all.

— For many wonderful memories and for your continuing friendship and caring.

Missy, Eva, Richard

Missy: Where do I begin? The time we've shared together will always be special memories. You've made my school years fun. Thank you for being there when no one else was. You've showed me what a real friend is. I'll always try to be that for you. Good luck in your future. I hope you're happy because I know you do that for others. Thank you for the special honor you have given me. You make proud to call you my friend. Take care.

Your True Blue Friend To The End,

Yvonne Vega

Eva: Can you believe it. We Made It! You've been a true friend. I will always be here for you. I will never forget our deep conversations and trips to the library. I can't even thank you for the many favors and things you've done for me. Thank you. You'll always be my special friend.

Your Special Friend,
Yvonne

Richard: To my personal therapist, without your knowledge and wisdom (and approval) I'd of been lost. Never forget our P.E. days.

Your Friend Forever,
P.S. This therapist is always here for you!

Friends

Dear Tricia — Thank you for the laughter and the tears, for being such a precious friend and special sister. May your every dream come true, and always remember that wherever we go, we're never far apart.

Love Always,
Julie

To all the Stage Band guys from Julie: Thanks for all the good times, guys — I Luv Ya!

To Mr. A — No words can express how grateful I am for your help, patience, optimism, and encouragment which have made these 4 years the best of my life. Thanks for believing in me.

Love,
Julie

Special Friends

To all my friends and those who are special in my life (and you guys know who you are), have a totally awesome summer! Good Luck in your future years of school. And to you graduates (Class of '85), good luck and best of wishes in your life ahead of you. To all you freshmen you are no longer freshmen, just sophomores!

To my sister Gloria Rios, who I love very much, but may not show it, one more year. Use it wisely!
To all the groups: Thanks, Track, Band, Key Club, Drill Team, Flags.

To think it all began four years ago in the land of Camelot. I hope you will remmber this song for the rest of your life.

"Each evening from December to December, Before you drift to sleep upon your cot, Think back on all the tales that you remember Of Camelot.

Ask ev'ry person if he's heard the story; and tell it strong and clear if he has not: That once there was a fleeting wisp of glory called Camelot.

Camelot! Camelot! Now say it out with love and joy!

It's hard to believe how swiftly the years come and go: or to realize how quickly a little girl can grow. The years can change many things, but never the love and pride we have for you, or the sunshine that your smile brings.

A special young woman, you've become your own person — confident, mature, independent and accomplished, but you will always be loved for the little girl you were.

We wish you all the excitement, all the challenges and all the happiness life can bring.

May you be as happy today as you are always loved.

Three Delegates From Two Different Continents

Continue Good Foreign Relations

Three new faces were seen the first day of school. They were the three foreign exchange students from Japan and Holland. Daisuke Suematsu, Chizu Takenaka were from Japan and Jacqueline Strankinga was from Holland. All three were excited to be in Hacienda Heights. Although they spoke with accents, their English was spoken with interest and eagerness.

Jacqueline Strankinga, a senior, resided with the Winicks from August and will leave in June. Living in Linschoten, Holland, she is the oldest child of her family. Drawing, bicycling, dancing and just spending time with her friends are some of the activities she enjoys. With a big smile on her face, she commented, "I really liked it here!" The warm weather agreed with her which made her like it here more. When asked how America compared with Holland she once more grinned and said, "Everything is so much bigger!" Articulating on her comment she stated, "Houses, trees are bigger and the schools are bigger too." Since school was bigger, she encountered many different racial groups and commented on that. Even though there is a McDonald's in Holland, she found American food quite "strange." "In Holland we have pancakes for dinner but it was strange having pancakes for breakfast!" mimicked Jacqueline. After graduating with fellow seniors, she wishes to stay in America to attend college. Her last comment was that she really like it here because it was different.

Daisuke Suematsu was a seventeen year old junior. In Japan he resided in Omiya, Japan, but he lived with the Heimbergers and attended school with Kevin Heimberger, a freshman. He was enthusiastic about photography and painting. Daisuke was impressed with the concept of elective classes. When asked what he liked best he answered, "You can study about anything you like." He was really interested in photo and painting so he took full advantage of the two classes because they were not offered in Japan. Daisuke concluded, "When I go back to Japan, everything is undecided. Maybe I finish school."

Chizu Takenaka a shy senior with a very feminine voice. The Princes were her American family, and Steve and Anne were her hosts. She came from Fukuoka, Japan, and attended Chikushi High School. Swimming, diving, and drawing are a few of her hobbies. She was very enthused about being in America. Being shy she did not say much, but after she returns to Japan, she would like to finish high school in Japan even though she would graduate with the senior class. Chizu said she would like to become an English translator and resumed by saying, "Sometimes I miss Japan, but I like it both in Japan and America.

Bank of America Awards

Plaque Awards

Students at each high school were recognized for their achievements in all areas of studies. These high and pretigious awards were the Bank of America Plaque and Certificate awards. The Bank of America's Achievement Awards have become highly respected.

Selected by each department of the faculty each student was chosen based on the high standards set by the faculty. The certificate winners were commended for their achievements in such areas as art, business, drama, English, foreign language, laboratory sciences, mathematics, music, social sciences, and trades and industrial.

Plaque winners in Applied and Fine Arts, Liberal Arts, and Science and Mathematics competed for cash prizes as much as $2,000-$5,000 for becoming finalists at the competition with other top students.

Kim Swenson received the award for art because of her tremendous talent for art. Julie Redman was the recipient of the business award. Diane Wilson, a very dramatic person, received the drama award. Kathy Barchick's knowledge in English earned her the English award. With four years of German behind her, Aeri Yoo was bestowed with the foreign language award. Adam Chwu's extensive knowledge in the sciences earned him the laboratory sciences award. Mathematics was Marc Wang's subject, and this helped her attain the mathematics award. Sarah Kim, a very talented flutist, was given the music award because of her love and talent for music. Trivia and history was Richard Narramore's game and this is why he received the social sciences award. Drafting was Linda Chou's favorite subject and this helped her in receiving the trades and industrial award.

The three plaque winners will compete for a large amount of money. Grace Lin's acumen for the liberal arts gave her the liberal arts plaque award. Charles Hsu was a very bright student who not only excelled in the area of science but also mathematics. This earned him the science and mathematics award. Julie Flores was the recipient of the applied and fine arts plaque because she was well informed about all that was happening with fine arts but the history behind the arts.

Congratulations go to all the winners and they were well deserved.

The End of the Beginning

Paw Prints Set in All Directions

The new school year started off very well. It was a new beginning for the Wilson Wildcats. The new faculty members, new clubs, new sports, new activities, and new faces on campus gave a feeling that we were starting over. As a whole we desired to put paw prints in a different direction, but in fact, we set paw prints in all directions.

In sports, the athletes of Wilson got recognition for the name of the alma mater. Both Boys' and Girls' Varsity Basketball won Sierra League and went on to C.I.F. Boys' varsity soccer also did well and went on to C.I.F. to compete for the championship. The best sport on campus was water polo. They won both Sierra League and the C.I.F. Championship. Coach Massey was named the coach of the year, and Greg Salvinski, the recipient of the player of the year. We also formed a new sport team. For the first time on campus, we had a girls' soccer team with the support of the parents and coaches and players.

Within the clubs and organizations, we also had many honors bestowed upon Wilson students. The Wilson Wildcat Marching Band Unit and Tall Flags went to Washington, D.C. to represent Wilson and California. Carol Tong placed second runner up at the National Miss Drill Team U.S.A. as the captain of the Wilson Drill Team. There were two new clubs on campus. They were Something New and Syndicated Surf, a surfing club.

There were new faces in the faculty and switches in the administration. The new teachers fitted in Wilson as if they were here for a long time. The changes in the administration was also good because the school ran as smooth as it could.

New activities were also welcomed, and they were great successes. The Valentine's formal was the best formal Wilson has ever had because of high attendance, and participation. The A.S.B. also promoted spirit by having Nerd Day, and having a Halloween dress-up contest. They also had a dance-a-thon for a two day period.

Glen A. Wilson High School has achieved more than expected. Now Wilson is leaving its teens and is going on to better and new things — next year is Wilson's 20th anniversary, and Wilson has more to offer than it did twenty years ago. 1984-1985 was a fantastic year, and Glen A. Wilson proved it to be exactly so.

The Grand Finale

It just seemed that school just started, but the year is at an end. When we, as seniors, entered school at September, we thought it would never end. All the tests we took and the pop quizzes the teachers popped on us seemed endless, but here we are at the end.

I think the class of 1985 will definitely miss the four fun years spent at Wilson, but life is ahead of us. It is always hard saying good-bye to things we love and hold dear to us, but the times at Wilson will not be forgotten.

For some of us the future holds college, and for others, it is employment, while for the others it is time to take it easy and relax. The class of 1985 set paw prints in a new direction, and in all directions we went as Wildcats. Knowing this, I'm sure everyone will succeed in whatever one decides to do, but I would like to be the first to wish everyone good luck.

The 1985 Prowler is completed, and there are many people who I would like to thank. First of all I want to thank Mr. Besse for always being so understanding when things did not go so well and for being such an excellent advisor. Next, I would like to thank Jane Kasel and Norma Ortiz for helping us put this yearbook together. You guys have been so patient with us. Thank You! The wonderful people at Watson Photography East, the staff takes our hats off to you. The faculty and administration have been magnificent to the staff, thank you. Mr. Wong, thank you for all the film we borrowed and for the help you gave us. To the talented artist, Sarah Benton, down at the Creative Resource Center, thanks for all the little things you did for us. I thank all the non-staff members who helped us. Last, I would like to thank the 1985 Prowler Staff. I know without the help of all these helpful people, this book would not have been the best it could have been.

With only the
Best wishes to everyone,

Jenny Park
